It Was a Roosevelt Vote
900 Russian Planes
We Have Incidents Enough
Our Soul Interests Him

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE LANDSLIDE election is called an indorsement of the "New Deal," but it is not that. The country doesn't know what the "New Deal" is, except that it changes frequently, and indicates a plan to take money from anybody that has it, dividing it among the others while it lasts, and the further intention to have everybody's private business run by public officials.

The landslide is an endorsement of FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT as an individual.

Last Tuesday the people did not vote for NRA, CC, or any other initials. They voted for Franklin D. Roosevelt, who has dealt energetically with unemployment and other problems, while the Republican party has been dancing around aimlessly, saying in effect, "Please elect me. It is true that I don't do anything, and have no plans, but still, please elect me."

Senator Borah, who is, or was, a Republican, speaking of the Democratic election figures, warns the Republican party that it must "reform or perish." For the moment it seems inclined to perish.

What sort of a party would come up if the old elephant should roll over and expire? Perhaps it would be a more radical party, with Democrats slowly turning to the conservative right.

Senator Borah puts it in few words:

"The people were asked to stop a program without any substitute being offered."

Captain Rickenbacker, America's best fighting flier, as this is written, is flying from the Pacific to the Atlantic in command of a Douglas air liner, trying to break the coast-to-coast record. He expected to fly sixteen or seventeen thousand feet up, where clouds and fogs cause little trouble, and the thin atmosphere offers less resistance.

Flying progresses steadily here, thanks to American initiative.

(Capt. Rickenbacker landed at Newark airport at 8:47 o'clock last night, making the coast-to-coast flight in 12 hours and 4 minutes and breaking the record previously set by him by 58 minutes.)

Washington might ask Mr. J. T. Trippe, head of the Pan-American Airways, about the Russian airdrome, situated about 150 miles north of Vladivostok.

On that one air field, aimed directly at Japan, Russia has 900 airplanes, of which 300 are bombing planes, each carrying four engines.

That sounds businesslike.

Japan might be interested in this statement of a Russian official:

"Japan has waited three years too long, if she ever meant to attack Russia effectively. If an attack were made now Russia would pay little attention to Japanese soldiers or warships, content to destroy by bombing and poison gas every important industrial center in Japan. That will be the objective in modern warfare. We have all Japan's industrial centers marked out, of course, with plans for visiting them efficiently."

Has any country made, without saying anything about it, efficient plans for reaching important United States centers, including the political center in which the White House and Capitol are located? It would be easy to visit those centers now.

Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War under Woodrow Wilson, says: "We live today in a world that is at the mercy of incidents," and urged the United States to join the League of Nations, "with certain modifications."

Mr. Baker means well, everybody does, but are we not "at the mercy of incidents" sufficiently numerous here at home, without making ourselves responsible for incidents that may crop up in Europe?

Shots Halt So. Shore Rum Runners

3 MEN SEIZED WITH $20,000 IN ALCOHOL

Deep sand and two police shots brought the capture of three alleged rum-runners in Hingham today and revealed to police a new landing place for bootleg alcohol and liquor, through which it is believed that thousands of dollars' worth of contraband has been smuggled.

Liquor valued at more than $20,000 was seized.

Captured on the shores of Back River in Hingham, on the estate of the late Peter B. Bradley, millionaire chemical manufacturer, the three men gave addresses in Revere and Lynn.

They said they were Frank E. Swett, Jr., of Broadway, Revere; Thomas V. Carey, 28, of Church street, Lynn, and George Hartley, 28, of Ocean street, Revere.

Two shots sent whistling above their flight by Motorcycle Officers William Arkel and James Fee brought them to a halt, but two companions escaped in cover of the woods.

LIKE SIEGEL DEATH CAR

Loaded on a truck, found on the sand and discovered cached in the hay barn and polo barn of the estate, were 385 cases of alcohol and assorted liquors.

It is believed, however, that before police descended upon the place after receiving an anonymous tip, three 200-case loads were taken away from the Back River shore.

With the liquor, police seized a light sedan with Maine registration, the same type of Maine-registered car which was found abandoned, with a shotgun, in East Boston a few hours after Nate Siegel, cafe man, was slain in his home at Revere.

Also seized were a heavier sedan, a truck with a name painted on the side, and a wrecking car carrying

Police Head Is Seen as Pawn in Job War

ELY GIVES JOBS; SEES HULTMAN

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Knives were sharpened, polished and laid out in a neat line today by Governor Ely in his threatened open warfare with Governor-elect Curley when Governor Ely declared bluntly that he would make what appointments he sees fit during the rest of his tenure.

With this defiance of the wishes of Governor-elect Curley, the State Chief announced the appointment of 13 persons to state offices.

One of these appointments is that of Frederick W. Enwright, the Lynn publisher, bitter enemy of Curley in the past, who lent support to Bacon in the last campaign.

The governor's statement was made following an eight-minute conference with Police Commissioner Hultman, who had waited two hours and 20 minutes in the outer office before being granted the interview.

Brushing out of the governor's office after the interview, Commissioner Hultman would reveal nothing of what had transpired, but Governor Ely declared that Hultman, as yet, had not resigned.

ELY TO "GO AHEAD"

The around-the-town report had been—and still is, for that matter—that the police head will resign in order to take a state job with more security and more pay, through appointment by Governor Ely. The Hultman police term expires next year.

Governor Ely left no doubt in any listener's mind that he has no intention of complying with Governor-elect Curley's suggestion that appointments and re-appointments to state offices be left over until Curley takes office on January 1.

"I shall serve out my term," said Governor Ely with a smile, and fully expect to be in control

TAMMANY IN DRIVE FOR HOUSE RULE

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

Washington, Nov. 9—The first sign of internal rivalry in the Democratic party since Tuesday's victory raised it to its highest pinnacle in history appeared today.

Certain Democrats north of the Mason-Dixon line opened a determined drive to capture the speakership of the House, for which the South also is contending.

The contest may develop to a point where the White House will have to step in.

Three Southerners have been considered in the lead for the post left vacant by the death last summer of Speaker Henry T. Rainey of Illinois.

They are: Representatives Byrns of Tennessee, party floor leader; Bankhead of Alabama, chairman of the rules committee, and Rayburn of Texas, chairman of the commerce committee.

The only Northern member to announce formally is Representative Mead of New York.

Other possibilities mentioned are Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, Woodrum of Virginia, Crosser of Ohio, Lea of California and Warren of North Carolina.

NAVY FAILS TO LIST HARVARD

The rumor that Navy would appear on the Harvard schedule next season in place of Holy Cross was spiked with great emphasis today when W. A. Finn, secretary of the Naval Academy Graduates' Association of Boston, announced the schedule for next season.

Bill-Ike Conquers New York, But Not Feet

New York, Nov. 9—They were rattling the ashcans around in the alleys back of Broadway's restaurants, and the yawning white wings were pushing their brooms and two-wheel carts along the gutters today before a small, white-bearded gentleman with sore feet limped up the steps of his hotel.

Most of the creases were gone from his new black suit. The silken cravat tied in a once-over had slipped a few notches. But William Isaac Small from Orleans, Massachusetts, was still the sleepless wonder.

For 64-year-old Bill-Ike had "done Broadway." In tow of a couple of newspapermen, and meeting up with press agents, masters of ceremonies and so forth Bill-Ike held his own and then some. Only his feet hurt.

Bill-Ike came into no little fame over in his home territory a fortnight ago when he announced that he had been practically sleepless for more than a year and intended to keep it up for the balance of the winter.

Someone, with an eye to business, decided that Bill-Ike could probably show these all-nighters down on the Great White Way just how it should be done even if the New Yorkers thought they were some pumpkins.

So Bill-Ike came to town, the picture of health at 64, with an eye as keen as a schoolboy's and a hearty desire to prove that you could go without sleep and still be that way. What a boom for the night-life merchants!

HE REQUESTS PRESIDENT TO CHECK 'WASTE'

By Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 9—Senator Borah today demanded an investigation by President Roosevelt or Congress of the administration of relief expenditures, asserting there was "shameless waste" in doling out the funds.

The Idaho Republican independent did not say so specifically, but inferred that relief money in many cases had gone for political purposes. On returning here from the West, Borah said:

"There is one thing about this matter of expenditures for relief that must have attention, either from Congress or the executive department.

"Everyone wants to see those who need relief get relief, but millions never reached those who need it.

"The amount expended before it gets to those in need is appalling. I have had brought to my attention instances in which the cost, or expense, of administering a fund was about half the fund to be administered.

"Now, the load is heavy enough for the taxpayers at best, but this shameless waste (if not worse) will have to have an end, not only in the name of the hungry and the needy, but in the interest of decency."

PLANE CRASHES IN FLAMES

By Associated Press

Beacon, N. Y., Nov. 9—State troopers reported to Corporal E. L. Tappey of the state police today that an airplane had fallen in flames near Bear Mountain bridge, on the Hudson river, and that the pilot had bailed out.

The state troopers, reporting by telephone, said they had not yet found the plane, but stated "definitely" that there had been a crash.

Neither the type of plane nor the identity of the pilot was known. The pilot had not been found, troopers reported.

The plane was reported to have come down between the east end of Bear Mountain bridge and Annsville creek, near Camp Smith.

RICKENBACKER'S PASSENGER TELLS ABOUT RECORD FLIGHT

LOS ANGELES TO NEW YORK IN 12 HOURS WITH THRILLS

Editor's Note—James L. Kilgallen, International News Service staff writer, flew with Captain Eddie Rickenbacker from Los Angeles to New York in th amazing time of 12 hours and three minutes, a new transcontinental record for passenger planes. In the accompanying article, Kilgallen gives a graphic description of the epic flight.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service)

International News Service Staff Correspondent

New York, Nov. 9—California is today as close to New York by passenger airplane as Pittsburgh is by railroad.

In other words, twelve hours away.

This writer was one of six persons who flew from Los Angeles to New York in a powerful, twin-motored Douglas airliner in the bristling time of twelve hours, three minutes and fifty seconds.

We had breakfast in Los Angeles, dinner in New York.

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, leading American ace in the World War, established his second transcontinental speed record this year when he landed the plane at 8:45:50 o'clock last night on Newark airport after the one-stop flight.

The single stop was made at Kansas City where it took only twelve minutes to re-fuel.

$ REPORTERS THERE

Rickenbacker had intended to stop at Chicago. But his gasoline ran low and he had to go into Kansas City.

The party comprised Captain Rickenbacker, Silas W. Morehouse, senior pilot of the "Lindbergh Line" for a long time, associate pilot; Charles W. France, vice-president, Eastern Air Lines, and three newspapermen—Roy W. Howard, publisher; Kilgallen of International News Service and Henry McElmore, representing another press association.

The three newspapermen sat in the cabin, in the rear. Up front were two auxiliary, or emergency gas tanks beneath the wings.

Over the Mojave Desert we shot at an altitude of 12,000 feet. On the plane roared across the northern tip of Arizona and the southern edge of Nevada.

Visibility was excellent. The sun came out strong and blazed through the windows. We were now doing 185 miles an hour.

At 7 a. m. Boulder Dam came into sight. The sun cast black and white shades on the mountains. We were at 13,000 feet altitude and still climbing. There were no tail winds, however, and this disappointed Rickenbacker a bit.

WHEN MOTORS STOP

The horizon was so clear you could see 125 miles in all directions.

Over the Grand Canyon, a magnificent sight, we soared at a dizzy pace. The panorama of America was spreading beneath us in a never-to-be-forgotten kaleidescopic picture as we streaked on.

Soon the blazing sun was glittering down upon snow-capped mountains. Red, yellow and green colors in mountain passes intermingled.

You had a slight feeling of lightness in the head. I had a pain over the eyes. Howard complained of a headache. McLemore felt the same way. Otherwise everything was comfortable.

Then came the thrill of the entire trip.

As we passed over the high, rugged mountainous ranges in Colorado, a little south of Cripple Creek, at an altitude of 16,000 feet, the powerful motors suddenly began to lose power and peter out.

McLemore was in the cockpit getting a shot of oxygen, breathing it it through the nose. He saw red it through th enose. He saw red lights go up on the instrument boards. Rickenbacker told him to get back into the cabin. He came out pale.

We noticed the motors were shutting down and the plane dropping toward the ominous peaks of the mountains. Of all places for a forced landing!

Down we went. The three passengeer quickly adjusted their seat belts and let nature take its course.

Rickenbacker and the other two in the cockpit were not alarmed, however. It seemed the tremendous speed had taken out all the gas from the tanks in the cabin and they were dry. In changing over to the tanks beneath the wings something happened and the contact was not immediate.

AT 250 MILES AN HOUR

Conditions righted themselves in a few minutes. And once again we felt the powerful pull of the motors and were again going up and on.

On the 150 miles just before we hit Kansas City we encountered strong tail winds and attained a maximum speed for this distance of 250 miles an hour.

We landed at Kansas City at 2:26 Central Time. We had made the 1,474 miles from Los Angeles to Kansas City in six hours and fifty-six minutes.

A crowd watched the re-fueling of the plane. In 12 minutes we were off on the last leg, the 1176-mile hop to New York.

The night was starry and beautiful. We passed close to Wheeling, W. Va., south of Pittsburgh. We were making good time. After leaving Kansas City we struck tail winds which for a time gave us a speed of 240 miles an hour.

On to the Newark airport we went, arriving there at 8:45 p. m. Eastern Time.

On time for dinner, so he gets a kiss! Yes, it's Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, being greeted by his wife as he arrives at the Newark, N. J., air port 12 hours and 7 minutes after leaving Los Angeles in a record speed flight, which beat his own previously unequaled time by 55 minutes. Beating his own record by 55 minutes, Captain Rickenbacker flew from Los Angeles to New York in 12 hours, seven minutes. Map shows route across nation, dials show starting and finishing time. (Pictures from International News Service.)

U. S. Probe of Curb Sales Continues

Federal inquiry into the activities of the Boston Curb Exchange, which so far has brought under fire two stock issues sold in this state, was to resume today, despite objections and charges of "star chamber" sessions.

Examiner Thomas J. Lynch and Attorney John J. Flynn of the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission are heading the inquiry. Its purpose, Examiner Lynch declared, is fact-finding, not in the nature of criminal prosecution.

But the investigation has now been broadened so as to include all possible violations of the national securities act of 1934. It was begun on complaints of the Boston Better Business Bureau.

CLAGGETT TESTIFIES

Strabo V. Claggett, former Democratic candidate for state auditor and member of the firm of White, Claggett & Company, described incidents leading to listing of the Yeasties Products Corporation stock on the Boston Curb after it had been rejected by Director John C. Hull of the state "blue sky" division.

Hull, who had been called by the government, testified that Yeasties Corporation sponsors had answered a question incorrectly in the questionnaire sent them by the state securities division.

Clagget, believing his own hon- had been called into question, jumped to [illegible] feet and insisted on explaining. Then he took the stand as a voluntary witness. He said:

"Hull said he did not want his department to approve the stock with the 25 per cent commissions and the bonus (25,000 shares to Claggett and his partner), but he said he would raise no objection to our listing it on the Boston Curb Exchange."

BOYLE ON STAND

Earlier the government had called Bernard L. Boyle of Putnam, U. S. immigration inspector, who told of alleged "high-pressure" methods used to influence him to buy an "electric-eye" company stock.

This stock was subsequently delisted from the Curb, but, Examiner Lynch asserted:

"This stock could not have been sold unless it was registered with the Curb Exchange. No effort was made to investigate the stock. They just took it and listed it and the people of Massachusetts were flooded with it."

New Cabinet Succeeds in Quieting the French

By International News Service

Paris, Nov. 9—Practical-minded Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin, heading a widely inclusive second "truce" cabinet that was substituted with lightning speed for the fallen government of Gaston Doumergue, today set aside basic problems of constitutional reform to grapple with immediate budget necessities.

France looked calmly on, pacified by the cabinet's makeup, which covers the political composition of the Chamber of Deputies from right to left, and apparently willing to give Flandin a chance to succeed in the face of economic emergency at home and recurrent friction with Germany.

The new budget, it was understood, would carefully avoid any increase in taxation. Flandin is believed to plan coasting over the crisis on loans.

If he passes the difficult budget hurdle—which is far from a certainty—Flandin plans sweeping economic and financial reforms.

While avoiding any inflation, the premier intends to take active measures to bring commodity prices in France more nearly to a level with those prevailing in other countries. He is known to favor increased trade with the United States.

Following are members of the new cabinet who were also in the old:

Premier—Pierre-Etienne Flandin.
Without portfolio—Edouard Herriot.
Withoutportfolio—Louis Marin.
Foreign affairs—Pierre Laval.
Finance—Louis Germain-Martin.
Air—General Victor Denain.
Marine—Francois Pietri.
Merchant marine—William Bertrand.
Education—Andre Mallarme.
Commerce—Paul Marchandeau.
Colonies—Louis Rollin.
Pensions—Georges Rivollet.
Health—Henri Queuille.

Other ministers are:

Justice—Georges Pernot.
Interior—Marcel Regnier.

TAMMANY IN DRIVE TO LEAD HOUSE of Illinois have indicated a willingness to run for the speakership.

Representative Martin J. Kennedy, Tammany Democrat, today said he believes "New York is entitled to the speakership."

Kennedy said he had conferred with a number of northern and eastern Representatives and "all feel that if the speakership does not come to the North, at least it is entitled to the majority leadership."

DRIVE AGAINST SOUTH

Declaring that the South has been "in the saddle" in the House for four years because it held the majority leadership and the chairmanships of all major committees, these Democrats ask more power. They emphasize that Northern Democrats now have more seats than the South.

"Most of Tuesday's gains in Democratic seats were made in Northern states, while some of the Southern border states lost to Republicans," Kennedy said. "Northern states now have 150 Democrats, Southern states 129 and Western states 44.

"It was the New York delegation that made it possible for Speaker Rainey and Majority Leader Byrns to be elected two years ago. Now it is time that their followers help the New York delegation elect a speaker."

FARLEY SHAKES HEAD

Talk that Arthur H. Vandenberg, the Republican Senator who retained his seat in Michigan while colleagues were biting the dust, might be the next G. O. P. presidential candidate drew a shake of the head today from Chairman James A. Farley of the Democrats.

"They will have difficulty finding a man to make the sacrifice," Farley said. "Vandenberg is too smart. And he didn't do so good, his majority was cut from 600,000 to 75,000."

Farley predicted President Roosevelt would be re-elected in 1936 by a verdict "practically unanimous." The Republican party, he said, "is positively through."

The American Liberty League, quiet before the election, jumped into the picture when its president, Jouett Shouse, said at Lexington, Ky., it would launch this month a drive for 1,000,000 members.

GEMS STOLEN IN FALES HOME

Jewelry, valued at approximately $2000, was taken from the home of Mrs. Jennie F. Fales, widow of former State Senator Frank Fales, Nichols street, Norwood, she reported to police today. The burglar entered by forcing a window.

A partial inventory of the ransacked house revealed that, among other things, the following are missing: A platinum dinner ring set with three matched diamonds around which are grouped smaller ones, an antique gold and topaz bracelet set with five stones, a pearl and turquoise gold bar pin, a gold chain with a diamond and pearl pendant and several pairs of earrings.

Death Claims Mercy Slayer In Hospital

Worcester, Nov. 9—Clifford B. Smith, 48, of Allen street, Athol, "mercy slayer" of his 22-year-old crippled daughter, Phyllis, died today in City Hospial, victorious after six weeks in his attempt to end his life.

But Smith's death was only indirectly through the slashings he inflicted upon himself in a suicide attempt after he had fatally injured his daughter with an axe on September 27.

Pneumonia set in two days ago, and because of his greatly weakened condition the disease made heavy inroads and Smith succumbed at 4 a. m. today.

During his last few hours, when he was delirious, the axe "mercy slayer" called to doctors to bring in the girl, Phyllis, insisting that they had her in the next room.

Police were holding a warrant against the father, charging murder of his daughter.

the name of Luna Park Garage.

Patrolman George Berry, clerk at Hingham police station, received the mysterious telephone call shortly after daylight. Refusing to identify himself, the caller merely said:

"You might be interested in what is now taking place at the Bradley estate."

His mind flashing back to prohibition days, Berry despatched Motorcycle Officers Arkel and Fee to the estate, and when they arrived they found the light truck sunk in the sand and with the wrecking car attempting to free it.

The five men at the scene fled for the woods, but while two gained the cover the other three halted when bullets whined near them.

There were 50 cases of assorted liquors aboard the truck and 51 cases on the sand beside it.

Police Chief Harold B. McFarland arrived with more officers and a search of the estate was begun, this bringing to light 136 cases of alcohol in cans in the hay barn and 145 cases of alcohol and three cases of Scotch in the polo barn.

NEW DEAL VOTE DUE TO OPEN TRADE BOOM

Copyright, 1934, by International News Service

Washington, Nov. 9—Organized business is prepared today to say "Let's go" on a sound plan of co-operation with the administration to achieve recovery.

This was strongly indicated by business leaders today as election bitterness waned and all doubt as to the control of the "New Deal" was removed.

The outcome may be the offer by organized industry of a truce similar to that proposed by the American Bankers' Association. High administration officials have indicated that such a truce would be welcomed.

Within 24 hours after Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the RFC sounded an optimistic note and urged business to "quit holding back," Robert L. Lund of St. Louis, chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers, said adoption of sound policies would lead to recovery.

In a message to International News Service, Lund said:

"Industry has welcomed the statements in recent weeks from President Roosevelt and other high officials that recovery is to be sought through sound methods of cooperation that will build confidence.

"If this policy is followed by Congress, we shall soon be on our way to recovery. There is an abundance of private credit and purchasing power stored up awaiting the driving force of such a program."

Rudloph S. Hecht of New Orleans, president of the American Bankers Association, said that "the offer of association officials to co-operate in recovery has no relation to political events one way or the other."

The chief stumbling blocks in the path of an open offer of co-operation by business were the administration's plan for making NRA permanent, agitation for a 30-hour week, inflation and labor controversies.

O'Hara Horse Aid Injured

Bridgewater, Nov. 9—William R. Flemming, 41, of Rumford, R. I., one of the most prominent horsemen in the Eastern states, suffered serious injuries today as his automobile left a highway in Bridgewater and crashed into a tree.

Flemming was taken to Brockton Hospital with cuts and probable fracture of the skull. Flemming was manager of the Arahoe Stable, owned by Walter O'Hara, head of the Narragansett racing park.

ASK LICENSE IN LOS ANGELES

PAIR SILENT ON REPORTS OF ELOPEMENT

By Universal Service

Los Angeles, Nov. 9—Ellen McAdoo, 19, daughter of Senator William G. McAdoo, and Rafael Lopez de Onate, Philippine-born film actor, have transferred the scene of their marriage license tangle to Los Angeles.

They previously had applied for a license in Riverside County, but on instigation of Senator McAdoo, it was denied on the ground De Onate first must prove he did not have Filipino blood. This step is required under California law prohibiting marriage of Caucasians with either Filipinos or Malays.

Yesterday the couple declared intention to wed here. They were informed by Rosamond Rice, in charge of the marriage license bureau, the same documentary proof also would be expected in Los Angeles.

According to the application, De Onate was born in the Philippine Islands 38 years ago. His mother, also born in the islands, was named Ysobel Navarro, and his father was Pablo Lopez de Duarte.

Because his mother was born in the islands, Miss Rice pointed out, De Onate must offer documentary proof of her lineage. The couple offered a passport issued in 1896 and showing both De Onate's mother and father as subjects of Spain. This was not sufficient, it was said.

Before giving out the ruling to the couple, Miss Rice said, she had consulted the county counsel, who gave the opinion that if De Onate can prove his lineage to be Caucasian, she must issue the license.

Neither of the pair would comment on recurrent rumors they would not wait for the three days for a license, but would elope to Yuma, Ariz., or some other handy Gretna Green.

The senator and his divorced wife, Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, have withdrawn their objections to the match.

MRS. GANN FACES FINE OVER HER "SEAT"

By International News Service

Washington, Nov. 9—It wasn't a question of precedence which marked her successful fight to sit ahead of Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth at social functions when her half-brother was Vice-President and Mrs. Longworth's late husband was the Speaker.

MRS. GANN

In fact, Charles W. Feagan said Mrs. Dolly Gann was sitting "in the seat of command" on the left rear seat of her limousine Wednesday. He said the car was parked in a restricted zone and he gave Mrs. Gann's chauffeur a ticket.

He reported he knocked on the glass door and then opened it. He told Mrs. Gann the car must be moved or she would be given a ticket.

"You can give me a ticket, but I'll get rid of it," he reported Mrs. Gann told him.

So he wrote out his ticket.

Mrs. Gann denied she made such a statement, and added:

"I've no statement to make to the newspapers and whatever is done about the ticket is a private matter."

But Superintendent of Police E. W. Brown has taken an interest in the ticket. He promised to see that "it is handled through the regular channels," to wit: Payment of $3 by Monday or face a hearing.

HAUPTMANN GUN MYSTERY SOLVED

Nephew Tells of Sale

GOT PISTOL, FOUND IN GARAGE, SHORTLY BEFORE KIDNAPING

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service)

New York, Nov. 9—The mystery of how Bruno Richard Hauptmann came into possession of the German pistol which police found so cleverly hidden in his garage was cleared up today by Hans Mueller, Hauptmann's nephew, in an exclusive interview with International News Service.

Mueller, who, like his uncle, is an unnaturalized German, admitted he sold Hauptmann the gun during the winter of 1931—several months before baby Lindbergh was snatched from his crib and murdered, the crime with which Hauptmann is charged.

The young German explained he had not told authorities the story up to this time because he wanted to protect his family from embarrassment.

Hauptmann, he said, had withstood weeks of grilling about the gun because he wanted to shield Mueller and his family from any suspicion.

The story of the gun, which Mueller persistently referred to as "the toy," is as fantastic as other phases of the Lindbergh case, involving a minor international intrigue.

"I first saw the pistol in the winter of 1929," Mueller said. I was working as a waiter in a place on 86th street at the time. A few days before Christmas a saloon owner I knew on 86th street received a package from Germany.

"Inside the package was another package containing two tiny pistols of the same make."

"About two years later—it was in 1931—I showed it to Richard Hauptmann and he too was greatly taken up with the gun. He said it looked like a 'cute toy.' I needed money at the time, so I sold it to him. I think he gave me $6, though maybe it was $10."

Discovery of the little gun, hidden in a board in Hauptmann's garage along with about $800 in Lindbergh ransom bills, was one of the most sensational developments after Hauptmann's arrest.

ROYAL K.O.

KAISER LOST TO KING EDWARD

Belfast, Nov. 9—How the late King Edward of England thrashed the former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany was recalled by the death of George C. Sanderson, whose father was Queen Victoria's chief steward.

Sanderson was told by his father of the battle royal which occurred at Osborne House on the Isle of Wight, where the future Kaiser was a guest when Edward was the Prince of Wales.

Edward was annoyed because his nephew, Wilhelm, was favored by Queen Victoria, Wilhelm's grandmother.

The upshot was that one day Edward caught Wilhelm out on the grounds and gave his nephew a thorough licking.

QUESTIONING OF YOUNG MOTHER COMPLETED

By DOROTHY ROE
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

New York, Nov. 9—The six weeks' court battle of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney over custody of little Gloria Vanderbilt must end today, or the principals will face night and Sunday sessions, Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew warned both sides.

After delivering his ultimatum, Justice Carew peremptorily cleared the courtroom of even the relatives and witnesses who have followed the otherwise secret proceedings, allowing only Mrs. Vanderbilt, her nurse, Mrs. Whitney, and their attorneys to remain.

Even Mrs. Vanderbilt's sisters, Lady Furness and Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, were compelled to remain in a room across the corridor, along with Prince Hohenlohe, Harry Hays Morgan and others of the aristocratic group who rushed to Mrs. Vanderbilt's defense.

The long cross-examination of the young mother was completed after a number of heated exchanges between attorneys. Among revelations was that the Vanderbilt Rolls-Royce was a second-hand car.

Asked if the glittering limousine had been a present from A. C. Blumenthal, theatrical promoter, Mrs. Vanderbilt replied emphatically that she had paid for it herself, had bought it second-hand and had had it equipped with a new body.

NOSE DIDN'T KNOW SMELL OF RICHES

Mrs. Anna Den Griss, above, found a lump of "funny-looking, smelly stuff" on the beach at Swampscott, near her Humphrey street home. Her brother threw it away. Now she's learned that it was ambergris, worth $96 an ounce.

AMBERGRIS

$15,000 LUMP THROWN AWAY

"Everything that glitters is not gold."

So often had Robert Caton, of 304 Humphrey street, Swampscott, written that copy book maxim that he came to believe it.

So, imagine his chagrin today when he was told that the lump of "smelly stuff" that he had thrown into the ash can two days ago probably was ambergris—$15,000 worth of it.

His sister, Mrs. Anna Den Griss, who lives with him, found the lump on the beach a few weeks ago. She thought it was ambergris. But it was about as pleasant in the back yard as an angry skunk.

So, when an analysis report came from the Junior High School that it was only waste, Caton threw it away to be buried under tons of ashes on the city dump.

But today came a report from Lowell Textile Institute that it is 10 per cent ambergis—worth $96 an ounce. And it is expected that—for once—the dump will be the mecca of every keen-nosed townsman who owns—or can borrow—a shovel.

PRESIDENT FOES STOPPED COLD

FRIENDS IN '32 EASILY ROMP TO VICTORY

Copyright, 1934, by International News Service

Washington, Nov. 9—The "Stop Roosevelt" Democrats of 1932 were stopped cold in 1934.

A fistful of nails has been driven into the political coffins of the group that went to the Chicago convention two years ago determined that the nominee would be "anybody but Roosevelt."

The political remains of Governor Albert C. Ritchie, who was a candidate for the nomination that Roosevelt won, will be taken out of the State House at Annapolis, Md., in January.

The gubernatorial hopes of John L. Sullivan, one of the Al Smith diehards two years ago, are buried under the ballots of New Hampshire's voters.

William H. Murray, who got off a train at Chicago in '32 and said, "you can bet your life the nominee won't be Roosevelt," and the candidate "Alfalfa Bill" put up to succeed him as governor of Oklahoma, are buried in the same political grave.

Only one survived — Senator Harry Flood Byrd in Democratic ribbed Virginia.

Contrarywise, the "Roosevelt before Chicago" men entered, almost without exception, into the more abundant political life.

Guffey, the original Roosevelt man in Pennsylvania, became the first Democratic Senator from the Keystone State in 60 years.

Curley, the original Roosevelt man in Massachusetts, became governor of the Bay State without a struggle.

Burke, who flew the Roosevelt banner in Nebraska romped into the senatorship.

Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming, who talked Roosevelt in the West was still U. S. Senator when the polls closed.

She made this known in superior court here in obtaining a divorce. Miss Burke testified:

"He didn't like Hollywood and was always trying to get me to go back to Chicago with him. He said the Hollywood people were all morons without any particular intelligence, and he wished I wouldn't associate with them."

ANCIENT IRISH SONGS TO FEATURE CELT PAGEANT

Music in its rarest and most ancient form will be sung during performances of "The Pageant of the Celt," huge dramatic spectacle, which will be given at the Boston Garden on November 22, 23, 24 and 25, it was announced today.

SHEILA O'DONOVAN ROSSA

At the first music rehearsal, held in the ballroom of the Hotel Manger with Benedict Fitzgerald, director of music in the Cambridge public schools, in charge, music plans for the pageant, which will aid the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund, were revealed.

Sheila O'Donovan Rossa, noted Bostonian, whose forebears were Irish leaders, will sing "Roisin Dubh" in Gaelic. This is the most ancient Gaelic song known and has been heard but seldom in America. Long before the Christian era, at a time when there were only five notes in the musical scale, this song was written.

Another of the soloes, "Hail Glorious St. Patrick," will be sung by Miss Julia Curtin, niece of the lord mayor of Cork, who recently has come to Boston.

In the early part of the pageant, Thomas A. Quinn of Cambridge, past state commander of the American Legion, will sing "Emer's Lament for Cuchullian," one of the earliest Irish songs but one known now as "Danny Boy." This will be sung in its original form and words.

Other old Irish selections will include "The Return to Fingal" in the Brian Boru scene, and "Silent, Oh Moyle, is the Roar of Thy Waters."

"Men of Harlech," the Welsh national anthem, will be sung by the Boston University Glee Club of 90 voices.

The Washington SIDESHOW

By GEORGE R. BROWN
(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service.)

Washington, Nov. 9—Deep down beneath the surface of the returns, the true significance of Tuesday's elections as Washington views it lies in the fact that America stands today, alone among the nations of the earth not subject to dictatorial government, the sole country without a Conservative party. The defeated remnants of the Republican party are themselves hopelessly divided on the issue that, slowly over a period of years, has been that party's undoing. An even quarter century after the beginning of the progressive movement, it is now half progressive and half stand-pat.

Of its conservative leaders all but a handful have either died, retired from politics, or have gone down to oblivion in the latest Democratic tidal wave. The present leadership of the G. O. P. is split asunder. The remarkable spectacle was thus presented in the campaign of Senator McNary, the Progressive-Republican leader of the Senate, remaining inarticulate at his home in Oregon while the Conservative leader, Chairman Fletcher of the national committee, endeavored to lead the party in the national field upon a platform almost diametrically opposite from the record which the party had made in Congress. No wonder the Democrats engulfed them.

As Washington sees it, the Republicans do not intend to worry as to whether Mr. Roosevelt will now turn to the right or the left. The Republican party must immediately make a similar decision for itself. The horns of its dilemma are indeed sharp. If the party becomes conservative, it will lose piecemeal its few remaining progressives to the Democrats, who have become the leading radical party. If it becomes progressive it will be swallowed whole by the progressive Democracy. Which way to turn!

There are now three major radical parties in the country represented in Congress, the Democrats, with their new theories of state socialism; the La Follette progressives, and the Farmer-Labor party. The Republicans, gradually absorbed by their own progressives, have broken with their historic conservative past. Many of the shrewdest observers in Washington believe that the party's only hope lies in once more becoming the conservative party.

The next struggle behind the political scenes in Washington will be between the two oposite schools of thought within the G. O. P. This may save the party of Lincoln, McKinley and Coolidge, or it may complete its wreckage.

Kansans in Washington lost no time in starting a Republican Presidential boom for Governor Alf Landon. A Republican governor who can re-elected in these parlous times immediately stands out in Washington like a sore thumb. Landon is in a class entirely by himself.

A dusky Capitol employe, hearing the corridors ring with discussion of the election results, sized 'em up in a word. He observed sapiently:

"Well, suh, hit seems ter me dat everything has done gone Democratic but hell and Vermont."

No Washington correspondent boiled it down so succinctly.

And then he added a touch which epitomizes the whole spirit of Washington:

It's all a matter of the time, the place and the girl—this question of whether or not short sleeves and bare legs are modest.

Entirely modest on the beach and the tennis court, they are, according to some of Boston's prettiest and most up-to-date young women, entirely out of order in a business office or on the street—especially the bare legs.

Or, so they have told the Boston Evening American's inordinately curious representative, more familiarly known as the Inquiring Reporter.

Said Miss Beatrice Carlon, of Franklin street, Wrentham, a nursemaid when times were cheerier, and a pleasingly competent one, obviously:

"Bare arms and legs are in order at the bathing beach or on the tennis court, but I think they are in very questionable taste in the business office or on the street.

"Many misguided girls, desirous of attention, no doubt, carried the shorts fad too far—into the public highway and some, down to their places of business. That sort of attention defeats the purpose sought in getting it. It reacts to a girl's disadvantage and cheapens her so that no nice young man will continue to take her seriously."

BEATRICE CARLON

Miss Helen Oslin, 9 Bentley street, Brighton, high school girl, was in complete accord with her companion. She said:

"I think short sleeves are O.K. almost anywhere in the warm weather but bare legs are certainly out of place in the classrooms, the business office and church.

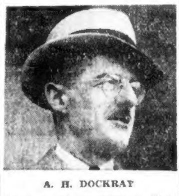
HELEN OSLIN

"It doesn't seem to me, granted you're young and have pretty legs, that there should be any objection to omitting stockings with evening-sandals at any social occasion. When a girl has good looking, sun-tanned legs she likes to show them—and should, but not, as I said before, on occasions or at places that connote dignity and reserve."

On the other foot, boys and girls, A. H. Dockray of Dedham, traveling salesman, has something else again to say. Listen:

"Are bare legs and short sleeves proper? Yes, by all means. And how I love to look at them! They are such an easy-to-take eyewash for the tired business man, weary from seeing too much red—on the balance sheet.

"The only time they are not modest is when they are unattractive. And it occurs to me that I've never seen that sort, so perhaps, women are smarter than they are given credit for."



A. H. DOCKRAY

Ralph Harris of Newton Highlands, Bromfield street merchant, is also against concealing such potent weapons in the battle of the sexes. Said he:

"Short sleeves and bare legs immodest? Indeed, no. They added considerably to the landscape this past Summer, although I suppose they will be missing during the impending New England Winter."

RALPH HARRIS

"Too bad. That's the only thing I have against winter."

Miss Alice Shea, 103 Park street, West Roxbury, cashier, is for short sleeves any old time but she draws the line at bare legs romping around too freely. She said:

"In my opinion short sleeves are becoming and comfortable. I would wear them at any time and any place. Bare legs, however, are another matter.

"On the bathing beach and in burlesque show, yes, but for ordinary street wear, at business or social functions—decidedly not. The silken clad limb is much more becoming anyway."

ALICE SHEA

Ernest R. Gaw, 1 Circuit street, Roxbury, genial theater manager, had this gallant retort to make to the inquiring reporter:

"I think you can generally count on women's innate good taste. Except in rare instances, most women have too much self-respect to appear in public places in questionable attire.

"There was a great whoop-de-doo about shorts this summer, but it seemed to me that it was much ado about nothing. The group who always rant about anything any time they get a chance saw in them an ominous sign that skirts were to be junked for all times and places. Ridiculous. They're ideal for tennis and other outdoor sports and it's for these purposes they are being worn."

MOYNIHAN PAID TRIBUTE BY B. C.

Cornelius J. Moynihan, recently appointed associate justice of the Central district court of northern Essex, was given a testimonial dinner at the Boston City Club by the students and alumni of Boston College law school, where he has been a professor for the past five years.

Professor Arthur L. Brown congratulated Judge Moynihan on his appointment, and stressed the need for good justices in the district courts.

Among the other speakers were Rev. John E. Creeden, S. J., regent of the law school; Judge Edward F. Hanify, John E. Swift of the superior court, David J. Coddaire, Rev. Charles A. Donovan, Frederick V. McMenimen, William Bennett, Henry M. Leen, and Dennis A. Dooley, dean of the law school.

Red Cross, Flags Flying Will Launch Roll Call

With a flare of flags and decorations at every vantage point, the annual roll call for the American Red Cross will open officially Sunday—Armistice Day—and continue until Thanksgiving.

Headquarters of Boston Metropolitan Chapter at 347 Commonwealth avenue, Back Bay, today announced plans for display of the familiar red and white flags and store decorations as a means of calling the roll call to the attention of the public.

Frederick C. Monroe, rollcall director, has been at work most of the summer in preparation for the activity that will start in earnest Monday. He announced that three large chain grocery stores have contributed space in the windows of 1500 stores so that novel decorations may be used to call attention to the drive.

Headquarters have been established in every community and special committees have been appointed to include Mayor Mansfield, Carl T. Keller, Henry J. Nichols, Mrs. Frederick Deane, James Jackson, Charles A. Birmingham, Ralph Bradley, Carl Dreyfus, Ernest H. Moore, Arthur G. Rotch and Charles F. Weed.

UNWARRANTED JEALOUSY BLAMED FOR 4 DEATHS

How strangely life set a trap for Joel E. Lidquist, insane killer of his young wife, his two babies and himself, was disclosed today when it was learned that the 27-year-old Stoneham father had been an attendant for the insane at Boston State Hospital, Mattapan, but a short time ago.

There the night superintendent recalled that Lidquist worked in the west group of buildings. In this group are confined both men and women maniacs, some dangerous enough to be confined in padded cells.

As funeral services for the victims of the tragedy were being planned, Stoneham police declared today that the funeral expenses may have to be borne by the town. Albert E. Finnegan, Stoneham undertaker, has arranged for burial of the four in Lindenwood cemetery tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Lidquist, his wife Corinne Elly Elizabeth, who was 26, and their baby daughter, Syrenes, lived in Greenwood street, Dorchester, at the time. The other baby in the tragedy, an unnamed boy, was born only 12 days ago.

Whether the principal actor in the Stoneham tragedy was affected by the experiences of the time he served in the insane wards may never be known.

BROODING TOLD

But Carl Seidelberg of Hillside street, Stoneham, whose wife was Mrs. Lidquist's aunt, remembered that Lidkuist quite the state hospital job of his own accord. He didn't want to work there any more.

Coupled with the remarks attributed to the man by his young wife, and the phrasing of the dead notes Lidquist left behind—one written in the blood of his younger baby—authorities are positive that insanity was long making inroads into the man's brain.

Only a few days ago, Mrs. Lidquist had commented on her husband's brooding over his poor health and said:

"He told me if it wasn't for the children, he would commit suicide."

JEALOUSY BLAMED

Unwarranted jealousy of his young wife and an insane belief that she was playing him false, although she had been but two days out of the hospital where she had her baby, are attributed by police as Lidquist's motives for the killings.

As far as the tragedy can be reconstructed, police believe that Lidquist, who was working a 4 p. m. heard noises between 1:15 a. m. and 1:45 a. m.; later at about 3 a. m. to midnight shift in the Atlantic Gelatine Company plant in Woburn, came home yesterday about one o'clock in the morning.

They believe, from a neighbor's story, that he began a quarrel with his wife. Mrs. Hattie Edmunds, who lived on the second floor of the house where the Lidquists occupied the top apartment, said she She thought little about it at the time.

Later in the day, when 14-year-old Ardis Robinson, who also lives on the second floor, went to call for the two-year-old Lidquist baby, she couldn't get an answer. The Robinson girl generally cared for the infant outside her own school hours.

The Seidelbergs were notified that no one could be aroused in the Lidquist apartment. Seidelberg, John Clarence Nelson, a neighbor, and police forced an entry.

In Nelson's own words, this was the sight that confronted them:

WIFE FOUND

"When we entered the second room on the third floor, I found the body of Joel Lidquist hanging from a bed frame which was attached to a light fixture.

"He was hanging by a belt secured to the bedframe and attached under his chin.

"In the corner of the same room stood a crib. In the crib lay the two-year-old daughter with her throat cut.

"I went into the next room. On the table, in a clothes basket was the 12-day-old baby boy.

"Then I went to the attic and found Lidquist's wife lying in the corner on her back.

"On the table beside the body was a note written on wrapping paper in blood with a bread knife pinning it to the table. The blood was from one of the two children as there was no sign of blood about the body of the woman.

"On the same table I found a post card with the following writings.

"'Red human blood to you. The life has been a great adventure—just a dream. The death will be still another one.'

"In ink, on the other side was written:

"'I killed the ones I loved, but why let the innocent children suffer the horrible sufferings life is filled with.'

BAIL FOR ROBLES KIDNAP SUSPECT DOUBLED

By Universal Service

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 9—With the bail doubled to $100,000 after it was announced the amount originally set had been obtained, Oscar H. Robson, Tucson night club owner, arrested in connection with the kidnaping last April of six-year-old June Robles, remained in jail today.

It was declared, however, that unless the amount of bail set is again boosted, Robson may be freed later in the day.

Attorney V. L. Nash had the $50,000 and was prepared to post it when he was informed that U. S. Commisisoner Daniel Hurley had doubled the bail on recommendation of U. S. District Attorney Matthews.

Undaunted by this setback, Mrs. Margaret Robson declared that she expected to have the $100,000 set for the release of her husband soon.

BRITISH AVERT ARMED COUP

By Universal Service

London, Nov. 9—England was recently on the verge of an armed coup such as Austrian Nazis staged unsuccessfully in Vienna last August, the House of Lords was told.

Lord Allen, a socialist peer and political lieutenant to Prime Minister MacDonald, stated he had learned there had been a movement to seize the British Broadcasting Company's facilities as a signal for the rebel movement.

His assertion was made during debate on the sedition bill which has already been approved by Commons. The bill would give the government increased power to prevent dissemination of seditious matter in the army and navy.

heir to some European throne, must we obligate ourselves to look after that incident and its result?

If Japan attacks Russia, or France attacks Germany, or vice versa, or if Mussolini attacks somebody, must we take part in all those "incidents?"

Why not stay at home. Mind our own business and endeavor, with proper preparatory and defense measures, to make ourselves independent of incidents? Why not let that Woodrow Wilson idea stay dead?

The Italian writer, Luigi Pirandello, wins the Nobel prize for literature, worth about $45,000.

After a visit to the United States in 1925, Pirandello announced his intention to return and "make a study of the American soul."

This country puzzled him in the days when we had "real money," and he said of Americans, "They throw their money away on art galleries, universities, foundations. They race about the country in high-speed trains and autos and airplanes. They take ships to all the four corners of the earth."

It would be as interesting to read Pirandello's analysis of the "American soul" as it would be to read an analysis of Mussolini's soul by Aimee Semple McPherson.

Pirandello is described as one who contends that "nothing is true, and anything might be."

That impression would be confirmed if he could return and analyze us now, in the middle of our depression and New Deal.

Gatti-Casazza, resigning as director of New York's Metropolitan Opera at 65, tells reporters about meeting Verdi, the great Italian, long ago.

The great composer said to the young director, "Young man, remember the theater is made to be full, not empty." He added that "nothing is ever artistic unless it gives pleasure."

That should be remembered by moderns seeking to make new methods, ugly pictures or hideous music take the place of real talent.

There is worry in Paris, as usual when a cabinet falls, with uncertainty as to ensuing events.

There may be rioting. But the French are logical, determined and practical. They have troops guarding Paris. If all goes well, then all goes well. If not, and the riots are not to be tolerated, a sufficient number will be shot. The French really believe that their government belongs to them, and do not want it jeopardized, at present.

TWO ROBBED BY TURKISH BATH BANDIT

A busy bandit, seemingly willing to turn his talents to any form of crime that appeared profitable, held up a Turkish bath in one part of Roxbury, early today, and snatched a woman's handbag in another, police report.

Henry Patterson, of Farragut road, told police that the man came into the Turkish bath on Carver street, where he was in charge, and asked for a package of cigarettes. When Patterson opened the cash drawer, the bandit produced a gun and said:

"Giv me what you've got and no talk about it."

He took the cash drawer's contents, $35, and disappeared.

Shortly afterward, Mary Godsey, of Columbus avenue, reported that her handbag containing $17.50 had been snatched on Vernon near Simmons streets.

In each instance, the thief was described as being about 30 years old, and of medium height.

ITALY HAS FEWER JOBLESS MEN THAN ANY NATION

Editor's Note: Regardless of other factors, Fascism has kept unemployment to a minimum in Italy, H. R. Knickerbocker, noted foreign correspondent of International News Service, writes in the 17th article of his series: "Democracy versus Dictatorship."

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service. Reproduction in Whole or Part Strictly Forbidden)

Rome, Nov. 9—Mussolini's state is the poorest big state in Europe. It has nevertheless kept unemployment down lower than any other big state in the world.

This is the one indisputable economic accomplishment of Fascism. It was not for jobs alone that Italians traded their liberties, but jobs were one reward.

Italy has today slightly more than 800,000 unemployed. Her population is getting on to forty-three millions.

Great Britain, recovering fast, has around 1,600,000 unemployed, or twice as many as Italy, with a population almost exactly as numerous. She is incomparably richer than Italy.

Germany, for all the heroic efforts of Hitler, has still nearly 2,500,000 unemployed. She has a population of 66,000,000. If her unemployment were on the level of Italy's she would not have more than 1,240,000, or half the present number of jobless.

FRANCE EXILES ALIENS

America, credited by the American Federation of Labor with more than 11,000,000 unemployed, has a population three times that of Italy. If our unemployment were on the Italian level we should have not more than 2,400,000 jobless.

France affords no comparison because in the first place her unemployment statistics are hopelessly inadequate and in the second place because she has combatted unemployment chiefly by the delightfully easy method of throwing hundreds of thousands of foreign workmen out of the country. This method is not open to states less fortunately situated.

Furthermore, Italy at no time during the crisis had more than 1,200,000 unemployed, which would correspond to 1,200,000 in England, 1,900,000 in Germany or 3,600,000 in America whereas actual maximum unemployment was 2,300,000 in England, 6,000,000 in Germany and probably more than 12,000,000 in America.

Skeptics of Italy's unemployment statistics are referred to Alberto de Stefani, former minister of finance, and one of Italy's most candid and able economists. He insists the figures the government prints are too high. Private investigations of his own to check government figures found they were twenty-five per cent above the actual number of unemployed.

HAVE NO MONEY

It slightly diminishes the Fascist achiement in their battle against unemployment, however, to realize that in Italy not more than 10,000,000 of the population live in cities, certainly 25,000,000 live on farms, and among the peasants there are many millions who never handle more than 300 lire, about $24 a year. They are self-supporting, outside the realm of money, and remain virtually untouched by the crisis.

Nevertheless, there were enough Italians within the realm of industry and of money to make this country suffer very considerably from the crisis. Italy, like many other countries, notably England, hit bottom in 1932. Since then her unemployment has decreased by 30 per cent, bankruptcies have declined, production and profits have increased, and all evidence indicates she has put her foot on the path to recovery.

This happened also in democratic England, and England has come back much swifter and more successfully than Fascist Italy. It is no argument for Fascism to point out that Italy has survived the crisis and begun to recover for democratic countries have done that too.

HOW DUCE DOES IT

Fascists, however, are proud of the unique distinction of having a world's low record in unemployment. How did Mussolini do it?

He first made a choice between the two possible methods of handling men without jobs. Number one method is to regard them as so many men too many, let industry come back without them, and in the meanwhile support them on a dole. Number two method is to keep them forcibly at work whether the work is commercially profitable to the employer or not. England chose number one method, Mussolini chose number two, and so did Hitler.

In both methods the population as a whole eventually foots the bill. In the second method, chosen by Mussolini, industry foots the bill as long as it can, and then when its reserves run out the population begins to pay in the shape of government subsidies to keep industry running anyway.

Hitler's assault on unemployment has just reached the stage where government subsidies begin to be necessary. Mussolini's system has reached the point where government subsidies can no longer be paid in their former amounts without incurring gravest danger.

First of Mussolini's measures to meet the crisis was to make employers take less profits and workmen less wages and thus keep more men at work. Since 1927 wages have been cut by 20 to 40 per cent, and it would probably be fair to estimate that the actual worker income today is an average of one-fourth less than in 1927. At the same time, by simple decree, Mussolini cut prices until cost of living was down by 16 to 20 per cent.

ELY DEFIES CURLEY; GIVES OUT 13 STATE JOBS

until I leave office. I will exercise the prerogatives and perform the duties of my office until then."

BACON IS SILENT

The governor then went into the council chamber, where the council had assembled a few minutes earlier, following a conference of the Republican members in the office of Lieutenant-Governor Gaspar G. Bacon, defeated by Curley in Tuesday's balloting.

Bacon, before the meeting opened, was asked to comment on the victory of Curley, but declined.

"I'll have a statement in a day or two," said Bacon.

Where it had been expected that Governor Ely might fire the first shot in the war against the successor Ely failed to support, the excitement seekers were disappointed. Instead of making major appointments for vacancies now existing, or to supplant present office holders with terms expired, Ely made 13 comparatively minor nominations to the council.

To carry out the mandate of the electorate for full co-operation with the national recovery program, the governor-elect has declared it essential that the men who are to assist him during the next two years should be of his choosing.

Governor Ely, in denying a report that Police Commissioner Hultman was to be made commissioner of public works to make way for the appointment of General Charles H. Cole to the police post, with Registrar of Motor Vehicles Morgan T. Ryan as Cole's legal assistant, asserted that there was no foundation for such an assumption.

SEEN ON WAY OUT

But despite the chief executive's statement, the story that Hultman's resignation is imminent would not be downed. Near the close of the Curley campaign the governor-elect characterized Hultman as "honest but dumb" and advised him to look for another job.

Ryan, also, is known to have been actively hostile to the governor-elect and is one of those slated to make room for an appointee in which the incoming governor has confidence.

Governor Ely said he will name the new horse and dog race commission next week. General Cole is being mentioned also for the chairmanship of this commission.

Another name heard is that of Bayard Tuckerman of Hamilton, gentleman sportsman, and one of the original petitioners for the legalization of the two forms of sport.

There are a number of important department heads, however, whose terms have either expired, like the ley takes office.

The governor-elect feels that it commissioner of labor and industries, or will expire before Mr. Cur- would be in "very bad taste" for Governor Ely to attempt to hamstring him with public officials not in sympathy with his aims.

Despite the present even division of 20 Republicans and 20 Democrats elected to the Senate, the possibility of a deadlock in organization of the upper branch of the legislature begins to be regarded as remote at the State House.

The Republicans, it now seems likely, will offer no opposition to the election of a Democratic President.

As some of the Republican leaders figure it, there would be more to it than just bowing to the popular will of the people as expressed by their preference for a Democratic administration.

It would make the Democrats responsible for legislation passed by that body and give the G. O. P. something to fire at in the 1936 elections, it is reasoned.

On the other hand, with three recounts in the air, it might be that Democrats will win more Senate seats and thus have enough strength to elect a president regardless. John W. Lyons, Cambridge city councillor, a Democrat, lost to Senator Henry Parkman by 434 votes. Lyons is filing for recount today.

P. Gerald Cahill, Waltham Democrat, lost out to Senator George G. Moyse, Republican, by only 95 votes, the first tally showed. Senator Joseph P. Cotton of Lexington had only a 1300 vote lead over his "New Deal" opponent, Walter J. Cleary of Lowell. Both Cahill and Cleary have petitioned for recounts.

Already there is keen rivalry for the honor among the Democratic members. Senator William Madden of Boston is an avowed candidate for President and claims to have 11 Democratic promises to vote for his candidacy.

Another man being prominently mentioned is Senator Frank Hurley of Holyoke.

Yacht Official Dead

Greenwich, Conn., Nov. 8 (AP)—William Christopher Close, 54, manager of the Indian Yacht Club for the past eight years, died at Greenwich Hospital yesterday.

Curley to Meet President

Governor-elect Curley will leave Boston tonight at 8 o'clock aboard the Federal express for Washington to pay a social call on President Roosevelt.

He told reporters this today at his office at 11 Beacon street, where he spent two hours receiving more than 150 of his most intimate friends.

Following his visit to the President the governor-elect said he would either take a vacation in Sulphur Springs, Va., or in Georgia. If the weather is warm at Sulphur Springs he will go there; if it isn't he will go on to Georgia.

Traveling with him will be his daughter Mary and Mary Aline Donnelly, Miss Curley's friend.

The governor-elect said:

"My visit to the President will be purely social, unless he leaves an opening for a discussion of some of the things I have in mind."

Asked if he cared to discuss what he had in mind, he replied:

"I understand that all information concerning talks with the President is given out by him."

Asked if he had any comment to make on the proposed appointment anticipated by Governor Ely, he said:

"I have no more comment to make on Governor Ely's appointments. The comment I have made covers my position. He is the governor and he has a right to do as he sees fit."

Three tables in the office were loaded with telegrams and letters congratulating the governor-elect.

2 HONORS WAIT CARDINAL IN CAPITAL

Two stellar days await Cardinal O'Connell next week at Washington, with the highlight a degree of LL.D. from Catholic University at which President Roosevelt may be present.

The degree is to be conferred Wednesday in the auditorium of the university before an audience of between 3000 and 4000 persons, according to present plans.

Tuesday evening at a dinner to be given in his honor by the hierarchy of the United States, the 89 bishops who are meeting at Washington for two days Cardinal O'Connell will be given a gold chalice in honor of his 50th anniversary of ordination.

Plans are under way also for a dinner to be tendered him Wednesday night by the Irish Ambassador at Washington at which members of the diplomatic corps and President Roosevelt's cabinet are to be present.

Young Eloper Faces Charge Of Perjury

Edward W. Spencer Jr., of Union street, Everett, is in Nashua, N. H., today to answer charges of perjury because he and his bride, the former Blanche M. Hefler of Chelsea, didn't want to wait another year to get married.

Spencer is only 20 years old and his bride is only 17. Yet when they appeared in Nashua and obtained a waiver of the five-day marriage law, each claimed to be a year older, according to authorities.

The complaint against the young couple was made by Frank R. Hefler, Blanche's father, who pointed out to Nashua officials that Spencer was still a minor and that his bride was under 18 at the time of the marriage.

Judge George M. French, as an attorney, obtained their waiver for them on August 4 and the same day, as justice of the municipal court of Nashua, he married them.

Chief of Police Irving F. Goodwin, of Nashua, came to Everett to make the arrest, and accompanied his youthful prisoner back to the New Hampshire city to face the charges.

BOOST IN PRICE OF NEWSPRINT IS FOUGHT

By Universal Service

New York, Nov. 9.—Announcement in Ottawa by Prime Minister Bennett that newsprint exports from Canada will be controlled by the Dominion government with the aim of obtaining higher prices provided the provincial governments concerned make a formal request for such action, brought prompt and vigorous protest and criticism from newspaper publishers here.

W. J. Chandler, general business manager of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, issued a statement condemning such attempts to set up a monopoly at the expense of the United States consumers and such misconstruction of the aims of the NRA. Mr. Chandler said:

"The effort of the Canadian pulp and paper industry to 'jack up' the price of newsprint to American consumers continues, although the maneuverings thus far have been under cover and somewhat confused.

BROAD POWERS GIVEN

"Under the so-called Marketing Act, recently passed by the Canadian Parliament, some rather broad and indefinite powers are given to the dominion authorities in the fields of price control, etc.

"The market for Canadian newsprint, however, rests upon contracts between mill and consumer.

"There is a strong aversion among Canadian producers to the introduction into their business of government price-fixing and public regulation.

"The resort to the dominion government for aid in compelling the American consumers of newsprint to pay the Canadian mills more than existing contracts provide, meets with its stiffest resistance from the Canadian industry itself.

"With the enactment of the NRA, the newsprint manufacturers saw an opportunity to achieve monopoly by codes under the Recovery Act.

"Understandings were reached with the Canadian manufacturers to fix their prices in conformity with such prices as might be established under the American codes.

"The result would have been to force American publishers not only to pay United States manufacturers a monopoly price for newsprint, but to pay Canadian mills, as well, the same price.

"The most active and persistent figure in this strategy is A. R. Graustein, the president of International Paper Company, originally an United States institution, but now practically a Canadian enterprise, so far as the production of newsprint is concerned.

STOCK PRICES DOWN

"The stock and securities are now worth only a fraction of the figures at which they were distributed, and there is no possibility of their rehabilitation except by resort to monopolistic practices and monopolistic prices.

"The situation is complicated by the fear of the Canadian manufacturers that the help of their government might prove very hurtful and result in a diminution of their sales in the United States and the deflection of established customers to other markets, and also by the fear that it might introduce the principle of government interference in private business and interfere with freedom of contracts.

"With the United States producers operating in Canada, it may be said that, after their disappointments in Washington, the question continues to be simply—can they, by direct or indirect methods—through government action in Canada if not in Washington—accomplish their never-abandoned hope of a monopoly which will enable them to charge what they wish for their product and pump the water back into their shrunken capital structures."

Bennett Explains Newsprint Measure

By Universal Service

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 9.—Newsprint exports from Canada will be controlled by the Dominion government with the aim of obtaining higher prices, Prime Minister Bennett said, provided the provincial governments concerned make a formal request for such action.

Bennett made the statement yesterday to a delegation representing eastern Canadian newsprint interests, who conferred with him and most of the members of his cabinet on the price fixing difficulties of the industry.

The delegates sought to ascertain the attitude of the government on the question. It was emphasized, however, they did not represent the entire Canadian newsprint industry, but merely a section of it and that no provincial government representatives were present at the meeting.

The newsprint representatives who took part in the conference were A. R. Graustein of the International Paper Company, J. T. Clarkson of the Abitibi Company, Charles A. M. Vining of the Newsprint Export Manufacturers Association and L. J. Belnap of the Consolidated Paper Company.

Following the conference with Bennett, the members of the newsprint delegation said further efforts would be made to line up all newsprint interests with the Ontario and Quebec governments and some sections of the industry to obtain a minimum export price for newsprint. Graustein said:

"Necessity for control of the industry by the federal government by fixing prices or otherwise would be disastrous. To prevent it, a majority of the industry will continue to exert themselves to the utmost."

"Everybody knows it. Your picture's all over the front page of the newspapers with your life history and what you said to the Prince of Wales."

From the Hall of Justice I went up to the Ellis Street Hotel at which Tom Carey had told me he was registered. He was out.

"Seen Angel Grace?" I asked.

"Yes. Last night. We did the dumps."

"Seen her today?"

"No."

"She jumped in the bay this afternoon."

"The hell she did!" He seemed moderately surprised. "And then?"

"She was fished out. She's O.K."

The shadow in his eyes could have been some slight disappointment.

"She's a funny sort of kid," he remarked. "I wouldn't say Paddy didn't show good taste when he [illegible]"

"It is. But you oughtn't have split on your word. You half-way promised you wouldn't have me shadowed."

"I'm not the big boss," I apologized. "Sometimes what I want don't fit in with what the headman wants. This shouldn't bother you much; you can shake him, can't you?"

"Uh-huh. That's what I've been doing. But it's a damned nuisance jumping in and out of taxis and back doors."

We talked and drank a few minutes longer and then I left Carey's room and hotel and went to a drugstore telephone booth, where I called Dick Foley's home and gave Dick the swarthy man's description and address.

"I don't want you to tail Carey, Dick. I want you to find out who is trying to tail him—and that shadower is the bird you're to stick to. The morning will be time enough to start—get yourself dried out."

And that was the end of that day.

I woke to a disagreeable rainy morning. Maybe it was the weather, maybe I'd been too frisky the day before; anyway the slit in my back was like a foot-long boil. I phoned Dr. Canova, who lived on the floor below me, and had him look at the cut before he left for his downtown office. He rebandaged it and told me to take life easy for a couple of days. It felt better after he had fooled with it, but I phoned the Agency and told the Old Man that unless something exciting broke I was going to stay on sick-call all day.

I spent the day propped up in front of the gas-log, reading and smoking cigarettes that wouldn't burn right on account of the weather. That night I used the phone to organize a poker game, in which I got very little action one way or the other.

My back was better the following day, and so was the day I went down to the Agency. There was a memorandum on my desk saying Duff had phoned that Angel Grace Cardigan had been tagged 30 days in the city prison. There was a familiar pile of reports from various branches on their operatives' inability to pick up anything on Papadopoulos and Nancy Regan. I was running through these when Dick Foley came in.

"NEWS FOR YOU"

"Made him," he reported. "Thirty or thirty-two. Five, six. Hundred, thirty. Sandy hair, complexion. Blue eye. Thin face, some skin off. Rat. Lives dump in Seventh Street."

"What did he do?"

"Tailed Carey one block. Carney shook him. Hunted for Carey till two in morning. Didn't find him. Went home. Take him again?"

"Go up to his flophouse and find out who he is."

The little Canadian was gone half an hour.

"Sam Arlie," he said when he returned. "Been there six months. Supposed to be barber—when he's working—if ever."

"I've got two guesses about this Arlie," I told Dick. "The first is that he's the gink who carved me in S[illegible] the other night. The second is that something's going to happen to him."

It was against Dick's rules to waste words, so he said nothing.

I called Tom-Tom Carey's hotel and got the swarthy man on the wire.

"Come over," I invited him. "I've got some news for you."

"As soon as I'm dressed and breakfasted," he promised.

"When Carey leaves here you're to go along behind him," I told Dick after I had hung up. "If Arlie connects with him now, maybe there'll be something doing. Try to see it."

DEATHS

MEDFORD WIFE BELIEVED SLAIN

While Athens, Ala., authorities were [illegible] the possibility of foul play in the mysterious death of Mrs. Adelle E. Morgan, 68, of 80 Lawrence street, Medford, her children today gathered at the home to await arrival of her body.

They doubted that their mother had met with [illegible], pointing out that she had suffered several minor shocks before leaving for Sheffield, Ala., where her husband James is a Tennessee Valley Authority engineer.

They believe she fell from a railway coach window to the track where her body was found.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Grigsby Griffin of Athens said following a coroner's investigation that he believed she had met with foul play.

He cited the fact that only $13 was found in her shoes and the string of her clothes, although she was known to have had $300 when she left New York. A small money bag around her neck was empty. Another strange fact was that she was wearing her corset outside her dress and a fur coat over that.

$2,500,000 Paid in Brookline Taxes

Albert P. Briggs, Brookline tax collector, announced today that $2,500,000, or 68 per cent of the $3,-00,000 tax levy due November 1, had been collected. This amount represents a gain of $100,000 over the sum collected at the same date last year. A notable record was made in the collection of the 1933 levy, with 99¼ per cent accounted for.

Fugitives Given Boat, Funds

"Crisco was advised by a doctor," explains Mrs. Francis Donnelly . . .

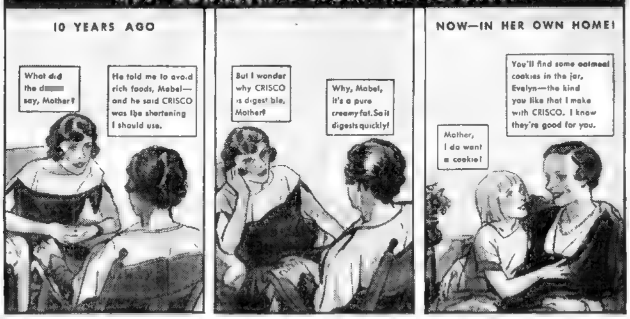
Yes, CRISCO is well-known as the digestible fat

Mrs. Francis Donnelly . . . "Mabel" to her friends . . . has a lovely shy smile . . . which lights up her face when she tells why she cooks with CRISCO—

"My mother used it before I married, 8 years ago, and I remember clearly how she came to use it. She had trouble with indigestion and her doctor recommended it to her. Her digestion was relieved . . . and as I used to help my mother cook, I've used CRISCO since I was married.

"Besides, CRISCO is pure and sanitary. My little girl Evelyn was very very ill two years ago and is still frail. We have to be more than careful with her food. I'd never use anything that wasn't safe, and that is how I feel about CRISCO."

MRS. DONNELLY'S STORY IN PICTURES



10 YEARS AGO
What did the d[illegible] say, Mother?
He told me to avoid rich foods, Mabel—and he said CRISCO was the shortening I should use.
But I wonder why CRISCO is digestible, Mother?
Why, Mabel, it's a pure creamy fat. So it digests quickly!
NOW—IN HER OWN HOME!
You'll find some oatmeal cookies in the jar, Evelyn—the kind you like that I make with CRISCO. I know they're good for you.
Mother, I do want a cookie!

NURSE KILLED IN HIT-RUN

Mrs. Mary Curran Stone, 39, mother of three children, former supervisor in Richardson House of the Boston Lying-In Hospital, was fatally injured by a hit-and-run motorist in Granite avenue, East Milton.

Although she was once in comfortable circumstances, her only financial wealth at the time of her death, according to police, was two pennies found in her opened pocketbook 100 feet from where she was struck down.

So terrific was the impact that the woman's skull was partially crushed.

The scene of the accident is one of the darkest spots in Milton and is not a heavily traveled road during the late night hours.

A note from the State Child Welfare Department giving her permission to see one of her children living in Brockton led police to believe that she may have come from Brockton to Quincy by bus and, being without carfare for the remainder of the trip, began to walk.

Brockton police learned that the woman had a brother, Thomas Curran, living in Parmenter road, Newton. He was sent for and made identification of the woman positive. Her last known address, he said, was on Harrison avenue, South End.

COURT UPHOLDS AUTO CODE

By Universal Service

San Francisco, Nov. 9.—[illegible] decision affecting, by [illegible] the entire code system under the National Industrial Recovery Act, the United States District Court in San Francisco upheld the retail automobile code.

On motion of the federal government, Judge A. F. St. Sure issued a temporary injunction against James W. McAlister and his auto distributing firm. The decision came in a test case after McAlister announced his intention of conducting business without regard to the code. [illegible] Easton, attorney for McAlister, announced that an appeal will be taken.

Penn. Blasted Out of G. O. P.

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Republicans are putting their political jig-saw puzzle together.

A lot of pieces are missing.

That big chunk known as Pennsylvania was blasted right out of the middle.

It was a complete turnover like a well-cooked waffle. The state decided to grow old with the New Deal.

There were some complaints that the balloting machines held down the vote to one a man. For the first time in many elections the census of human beings was equal to the plebiscite of inhabitants.

But through it all ran a note of Democratic forgiveness. Several congressmen had their sentences commuted and even the governor was reprieved.

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

One would have suppposed that the Hitler craze for pure Teutonic religion, philosophy, literature and art had approached its limit but I saw an item the other day which seemed to me the very height of absurdity or if you prefer another viewpoint, the very nadir of intelligence and taste.

Robert E. Rogers

The story is that the National Socialist Culture Community, headed by Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, as spiritual supervisor of the German people, is dissatisfied with the Mendelssohn music for Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" and has placed orders with several non-Jewish German composers for a completely new setting. There is no question of a competition because recently there was a competition for a German hymn for the imminent Olympic Games and the Nazi authorities were disappointed because the resulting music was not Nazi enough.

The tests by which one decides whether music is Nazi or not would seem to us in America fairly difficult and dubious. The only clue I have is the kind of music that used to be played by Ernst Hanfstaengl at Harvard smokers or beer nights when I was an undergraduate. He played Wagner almost entirely and at top speed and with terrific verve and power, in the Rubenstein tradition. It was popularly said even then that after Hanfy had played Wagner on the stoutest piano it was done for. Now we know that Hanfstaengl today is David to Hitler's Saul, playing him out of his moods and depressions, and that he has composed various Nazi official Nazi hymns and marches. Perhaps the Hanfy tradition is to set the standard for Nazi music.

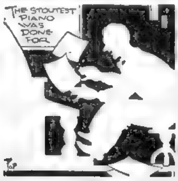
Some years ago there was a loud outcry against Granville Barker's staging of the "Midsummer Night's Dream" because he dressed his fairies in stiff golden armor, with golden wings and gold-leaf masks on their faces, thus making of Shakespeare's English Warwickshire fairyland a strange, rigid glittering shrine of East Indian gods and godlings. We know of course—as Arthur Rackham has showed us—that Peaseblossom, Cobweb, Mustardseed and Moth really wear cunning confections of leaves and blossoms, with hats like flower-bells and wings of dragonfly gauze, and that Oberon and Titania are clothed in the silver of the moon.



THE STOUTEST PIANO WAS DONE FOR

We know, too, that Mendelssohn brought back from fairyland once and for all the very atmosphere of that place. No one has caught, as he did, in the silver witchery and shimmer of his violins the sense of the fourth dimension, the something magical and unearthly, light and bodiless as if a kind of emanation of nature itself. Yet in other portions of the music he can give in the woodwinds and brasses the sense of the pomp and circumstance of Theseus' court and, yet again, the rough and tumble antics of the Athenian clowns dancing their bergamask dance for the entertainment at Hippolyta's wedding.

One cannot but wonder what a good Nazi musician can compose which will at once sustain the mood of Shakespeare's fairyland and express orthodox national socialist doctrine. Will it be all blare and brass as of marching storm troopers? Will the clown artisans be regimented agriculturists and laborers of a national-socialists state? And above all, will the fairies be decked out musically in brown shirts and steel helmets, dancing according to rigid orders, all their fairy anarchy subdued? For one suspects that the Nazi fairies are a different breed from those that Shakespeare imagined. Different, earthly, and obscene. Some of them were killed in cold blood, for their obscenity, in the recent bloody clean-up. Not such as the youthful romantic imagination of Mendelssohn could do justice to.

Merely to think of it all tries one's patience beyond endurance. The conception that Mendelssohn's music is Jewish because Mendelssohn was a Jew is about the last aberration of human intelligence. These people are poisoned with doctrine—an indefensible doctrine at that—until it has become a madness in them. What of Wagner, whom some believe to be of Jewish blood? What of Ludwig Van Beethoven the Dutchman, who renounced Napoleon, an earlier tyrant, and destroyed his dedication of the Eroica? Is his music, even, safe for a good German to hear? And the Viennese Strauss?

Whom the Gods destroy they first make mad. If this is not madness, I do not know what is.

MARINA TO GET MYRTLE SPRIG

THOUSANDS OF FLOWERS READY FOR WEDDING

By International News Service

London, Nov. 9—A sprig of myrtle picked from the tree which has supplied myrtle to every royal bride in England since the wedding of Queen Victoria will be carried to the altar as the centerpiece of the wedding bouquet being planned today for Princess Marina of Greece.

The wedding of Marina to King George's youngest son, the Duke of Kent, set for 11 a. m., on Nov. 29, will be the most brilliant society event in London since the Duke of York's marriage to Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, in 1923.

Princess Marina's wedding bouquet will be made up of flowers from the hot houses in the Windsor castle royal gardens. The exact composition of the bouquet, however, will not be decided upon definitely until Marina reaches England, but lilies of the valley, orchids and carnations are certain to be used.

All floral decorations for the wedding reception at Buckingham palace will be supplied from the Windsor gardens. Hundreds of Calanthe orchids, red and white carnations and Lorraine begonias already are being nursed carefully so they will be at their most brilliant stage of development on the very day of the wedding.

More than 5,000 carnations alone will be used for decorating the tables at the wedding reception. The color scheme will be red, white and blue—the colors of the British and Greek royal houses.

Palms have been banned both at the palace and at Westminster Abbey where Marina will march to the altar in a lace wedding veil which is an heirloom of the Greek royal family. She also will wear a necklace and bracelet which will be the gifts of her betrothed.

State Law Saves Schools Chicopee Closing Blocked

Suit Planned

MUST REOPEN ON NOV. 30

Chicopee, Nov. 9—While it was definitely known today that the city's closed school system would reopen by November 30 at the latest, a legal action was being prepared that would make history in the state.

Mayor O'Niel Deroy, who got along in the world despite the fact that he left school from the third grade, subscribes to the thesis that "there is too much education." It was his action in refusing approval to a school budget that closed the schools yesterday.

But a state law says that a city failing to appropriate funds to keep its schools open for the minimum period required by law must forfeit an amount equal to twice the largest annual school appropriation ever made.

Mayor Deroy's opposition, headed by many school officials, have enlisted the attorney-general's office to enforce this law. In the meantime however since the appropriation sought, $2[illegible], is only a supplementary sum for the year, schools will reopen anyhow when the next school fiscal year starts on the 30th.

The mayor refused to approve the appropriation because he said the school officials were "licentiously extravagant." School Superintendent J. J. Desmond reminded him that the teachers took a 10 per cent pay cut last year and that the budget was sliced from $[illegible],382 to $500,072.

When little Catherine Ahern, above, has three pennies, all at once, to spend, she always tries to get her money's worth. A "left to the jaw" and a loud slam of the front door. That was the [illegible] that brought uncontested divorce decrees today to Mrs. Beatrice D. Mignery of Newtonville and Mrs. Huma P. Ritter of Malden in Middlesex probate court.

Mrs. Mignery, alleging cruelty, testified that she married William J. Mignery in Maryland in 1926, but that he then said his name was Valentine. He struck her often in the next two years, she said, and finally left her in Nova Scotia in 1928, ostensibly to get a job in Boston. She never saw him again, she said.

Mrs. Ritter testified that she married Henry Ritter in New York in 1928. In 1932 they moved to Malden, and in September of the next year, she said, he told he was tired of being "tied down." Before that he drank much and often struck her, she added.

GUNS OUT
Holiday Reason

Nimrods who had been looking forward to the Armistice Day holiday, which will be observed next Monday, were doomed to disappointment today by an announcement from Raymond J. Kenney, director of fish and game. Kenney's announcement warned them that all hunting must be suspended between the hours of 7 a. m. and 1 p. m. Monday, as the same laws in force on the Sabbath will be in effect.

Kenney pointed out that a law was passed by the last Legislature classing Armistice Day in the same category as the Lord's Day. The law was specific in stating that if November 11 fell on a Sunday and the holiday was observed on the following day, the Sunday laws would still be in effect.

The Last Roundup Reaches Winchester

BUT COWBOY POLICEMAN CAN'T CATCH COW; RODEO SENDS AID

All the Winchester chaps and combrero folks are riding range again, even Patrolman Henry Hopalong Dempsey. But he has to use the police department's one and only cruiser car, the departmentl pinto having been traded in on the automobile.

It's all because of Edward Henry Stone's new cow—a prize critter that arrived at the Stone ranch on Cambridge road at High street yesterday afternoon and took to the woods.

Good old Hopalong Dempsey saddled his Ford and threw a lasso onto the back seat the minute he heard about it. But by nightfall, he was ready to admit that you can't use a car instead of a pony when it comes to chasing cows.

This morning, Stone's son-in-law, Carl Wood, of 36 High street, who allowed us how he had roped a few cattle on a dude ranch in Texas, arrived in his 10-gallon hat. But his luck with the cow was just about as good—or as bad—as that of Hopalong.

So the Winchester cowboys were forced to telephone to the Boston Garden. Now the Rodeo people are sending out Champion Hugh Bennett of [illegible], Ariz., to rope the [illegible] critter.

A Word for Bingham — Mills, Kicking Attorney

By AUSTEN LAKE

WELL, FRIENDS, I SEE WHERE a handful of Harvard alumni are collaborating to make life a little harder for Bill Bingham, the athletic director. This is a healthy sign, because a good man like Bill should never be without a few pouty, cross-patch bigots on the other side as a compliment to his force and character.

Directing college athletics is a crazy-quilt job at best in which a small section of the alumni, who are still sophomores at heart, are always giving off steamboat hollers in proportion as their team wins less. You heard the goose honks and frog chorus of the Yale and Dartmouth alumni last year which brought about a change in football government which seems no great improvement.

Bingham's task is not merely to keep the boys fat and happy. Nothing so simple. He must pamper a few old grads whose chests have long since slipped down into their laps and who spend most of their time listening to their arteries harden, yet never forget that they were once sun-tanned lads with the feel of the wind on their faces.

Fortunately at Harvard there has been a malignant case of tolerance on the part of the alumni, which knows that Bingham has done a clean cut, workmanlike job. No scandals have busted out, no dock wallopers and cowhands thinly disguised as scholars, have horned into the varsity lineup. The sports administration has been of, by and for the boys.

Yet there are always a scattering of malcontents, downtown quarterbacks who mumble over their mid-day broth when their teams flunk football glory and lose a few games. They demand an eleven with floating power, knee action and velvet smoothness, lacking which they would be pleased to nail the hides of the coaching staff and the athletic director to the fence.

From my post of observation I would say that 99 44-100 per cent of Harvard men are wholly pleased with Bingham's stewardship and that the rest are whimperers in the wilderness.

SMALL BEGINNINGS LEAD TO great ends. Consider the case of Ford Frick, the new National League president. He was a sports chore boy on a Colorado Springs journal in 1922 when Arthur Brisbane, Hearst's famed paragrapher, passed by on a fishing trip.

Brisbane read the lad's comment by the light of a mosquito lamp in his tent, liked the breezy style and on returning to New York, wired him an offer to come to New York.

Frick came, carved his swath, bounced into the job as N. L. publicity man last December and caromed from thence into the lofty perch of league prexy.

I am wondering what might have happened to Frick if Brisbane had never taken that fishing trip, and whether his sweetness would have been wasted in the Colorado desert air.

I am a believer in the fickle favors of circumstance, and once I proved to my satisfaction [illegible] to ex-Governor Fuller's, that his wealth and political fame [illegible] to the fact that he had begun his career as a professional bicycle rider, which led him into selling bicycles, which put him in the way of being the Packard auto agent, which developed him [illegible] his wildest dreams and gave him the means and leisure to pursue statecraft.

JACK DEMPSEY, LIKE A NORMAL human, believes he has most of his old fistic cunning and stamina. He told me he could go four rounds as fast as and cleverly as he ever did—beyond which his wind was scarce and his legs quivery.

Human egotism is such that a man seldom admits the frost of age in his bones. Few athletes reach the edge of their physical horizon without feeling that they could, if the zest remained, continue indefinitely.

LEROY MILLS, IS A White Plains, N. J., lawyer, who is coming here tomorrow to watch Army play Harvard.

Mills, now [illegible] football [illegible] unique in the history of football. He is the outstanding authority on kicking a football, and though he never played the [illegible] his schoolboy days he has made a life's hobby of punting, place and drop kicking, so that he has written a volume on the subject and annually spends much time coaching the athletes at Princeton, Army, Rutgers, etc.

This is a labor of love to the courteous, quiet spoken little man. He never charges for his services. Yet many of the modern greats, like Buckler of Army and Carideo of Notre Dame, have learned their kicking arts from him.

GLENN WARNER, THE LEGENDARY saint of football, has sounded a warning against the poisonous influence of gambling on college games, which he predicts, unless curbed, will strike at the very taproots of the sport.

He cites the growing tendency of betting brokers to take large wagers and the huge sums that are spent on the weekly pools, which are controlled by racketeers.

Apparently Old Pop fears that sometime, with a large stake in the balance, the racketeering gentry will subsidize an official or a star player and cause a scandal akin to the Black Sox infamy in the 1919 World Series.

Pop further points to the uncomfortable positon of the college coach, whose alumni bet lavish, sentimental sums and then scourge the coach when they lose. He remarks that a $10 bet will often transform a moral, well behaved alumnus into a frothing maniac.

HEIGHT OF VIRTUE—Beattie Feathers, the Indian halfback, who comes with the Chicago Bears to play the Boston Redskins here Sunday, refused $500 to indorse a popular brand of cigarets, because he did not smoke . . . Summit of sentiment—Postmaster Farley has been petitioned by [illegible] New York baseball fans to issue a Babe Ruth 3-cent stamp . . . Unquenchable faith—Knox College of Galesburg, Ill., has lost 22 straight football games, having no member of the team who has played a winning game since 1930 . . . Peak of sarcasm—Colgate's director of publicity has sent Senator Huey Long a wire, challenging his Louisiana State team to a practice game, with machine guns and the State National Guard barred from the scene . . . Acme of frustration—Sing Sing's Black Sheep football team, composed of long-term inmates, wears the cast off uniforms of Notre Dame, the most traveled college group in the country.

EXPERIENCE GIVES ARMY BIG EDGE

By H. R. "Tack" Hardwick
All-Time Harvard All-American End

Rivalry in football between Harvard and the Army is of long standing. With a few exceptions, these two institutions met annually from 1895 through 1910.

The results had a marked Crimson tinge as Harvard won every game. From 1913 to 1923 no contests were staged, but since then the shoe has been most distinctly on the other foot with the Army winning [illegible] times [illegible] losing once.

Annually the Army is a serious candidate for the so-called Eastern championship, which should be the case as its teams have invariably a skeleton of players who have had experience at other colleges prior to their entrance to West Point.

I am not implying the frequently discussed charge that the Army intentionally favors the enrollment of outstanding football players to bolster their teams. I merely wish to state that two or more additional years in age and in active participation do make a huge difference.

The average young man going to well say Harvard as that is the team the Army meets tomorrow lacks the experience and [illegible] to that finished [illegible] which the Army team customarily [illegible]. A lad goes direct from preparatory school or high school to college. His sophomore year he is in a bit of a fog. Large crowds, the tension of big games, the innumerable finer points of college play are strange and bewildering to him.

GETS THE FEEL

[illegible] year he begins to [illegible] feel of things [illegible]

His senior year he [illegible] finesse and he knows the little niceties of play that are so vitally important.

Let us consider those Army players who in the last 20 years have been selected on the All-America. There have been eight so selected. Five of these played college football prior to going to West Point. John J. McEwan at Minnesota, Elmer G. Oliphant at Purdue, Edgar W. Garbisch at Washington and Jefferson, Harry E. Wilson at Penn State and Christian K. Cagle at Southwestern Louisiana Institute.

None of these great players, however, was an All-America selection prior to playing at West Point. Good unquestionably they were, but not sufficiently [illegible] the All-America. Then they were the average players they were [illegible] called upon to [illegible] BUT with that additional maturity and experience they won this honor. Those extra years gave them an enormous advantage.

Now the point I am trying to bring out, is

"Should any player with three or more years of college competition be permitted to play against teams who conform to such a rule? Is it a sound practice? Is it for the best interests of collegiate sport?"

You answer it, as I do not know the answer.

ARMY RUGGED, FAST

To get back to tomorrow's game the Army team is a typical rugged, fast and thoroughly drilled outfit. Of their players the name of Jack Buckler is heard most frequently. He was All-America last year. A gifted back who runs, kicks and passes with consummate skill.

But do not overlook the teammate who, to a great extent, permits Buckler to star. Captain Joseph Stancook showed promise as a freshman at Notre Dame, and has more than lived up to that promise at West Point. He is a great football player, and his exceptional ability to interfere makes possible many of Buckler's brilliant feats.

No horse runs far in a locked

Devlin Guides Lawrence Eleven Through 25 Games Without Defeat

By Bill Connell

Mark H. Devlin [illegible] as king of the school football teachers this year. His Lawrence high grid brigade merrily is rolling toward its [illegible] consecutive game.

For 25 games Lawrence hasn't been beaten. Since 1932 in fact, when Rindge Tech handed Lawrence [illegible] record [illegible]

Silver that [illegible] worked [illegible] etched around his eyes by the [illegible] care and [illegible] thousands of practice sessions [illegible] lin. But he's yet slim as when he played a great game of halfback for Holy Cross after headlining for Lawrence high, a couple of decades back.

FOUR PASSERS ON TEAM

His voice and manner are as alert and aggressive as when he started coaching. And his team is, as ever [illegible] up-to-the-minute [illegible]

Take his 1934 team. (Most school coaches would be glad to do this.) One passer isn't enough. All four backs pass. All four backs and the two ends are receivers. Two backs kick. Three [illegible] while two are ace blockers. Toss that talent back of the powerful, smart Lawrence line and don't be surprised when they win, week after week.

Captain Tony Bush, 160-pound right end, is one of the very few Bay State schoolboys ever to be a regular for four years. He made the team in his freshman year and he's been improving ever since. A smart, fine leader and first rank wing.

Bush may, by the way, be the last Lawrence boy to play four years. The freshmen now attend school in the afternoon and do not play football.

Henry "Snake Hips" Ouelette, 155, a senior and veteran, halfbacked last year. Now he's pilot, and a good one. Runs the team well and has unusual carrying ability. With every foe trying to bottle him up he does fine work. He divides punting duties with Phil Rapa, 140-pound right halfback. Rapa doesn't carry the ball much, but he blocks and hasn't missed a placekick after touchdown in the last three games.

Johnny Murphy, southpaw of the four passing backs, with Ouelette, does the bulk of the ball toting. He weighs 150, is very fast and passes accurately. Is one of two fine baseball players in the backfield, for he captains the nine next spring in an outfield position. Rapa is the other diamond star. A pitcher, he's lost

Economy Policies Ruining Harvard, Alumni Claim

By Dave Egan

If Bill Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, can read the hand-writing on the wall, he must know that Harvard graduates are howling, not for the scalp of Head Coach Casey, but for his own scalp.

Efficiency, what crimes have been committed in thy name!

Economy, what grim irony has walked along with you!

Gate deceipts, what importance you have achieved under the smug, big business attitude of Bingham!

Back in the dear old days, a needy athlete could wait on table at the Varsity Club and receive, in addition to his meals, the lavish sum of $5 a week.

Erwin Gehrke, "Buck" Evans, George Braden, Leo Daley, Carl Lundell, Dr. Billy Burke, Al Miller, Izzy Zarakov and a fiend in human form entitled Dave Egan worked there.

There was no end of jubilation when it was announced that Bingham had been named as athletic director, and Henry W. (Esky) Clark as his assistant.

Hadn't Bingham come to Harvard as a poor boy? Hadn't "Esky" Clark sailed down from Ketchikan, Alaska, in an open boat and crossed the continent by riding the rods in order to gain an education at Exeter and Harvard?

The Poor Boy, Mr. Bingham, Takes Dough From Poor Guys

They were the friends of the boys who were working their way through Harvard, and the boys went on a wild spending spree. They went to the movies in Boston, despite the fact that the subway fare—20 cents—was a most important item in those perilous times.

Yet, one of the first moves which Bingham made, after assuming the benevolent Fred Moore's position, was to announce to the boys that, in the interests of economy, they would have to work for their meals alone. And, furthermore, it might look like proselyting.

And when Harvard went out to the Middle West to meet Michigan, two broken hearted young men—Movius and Levin—were left home, in order to cut down the expenses.

"But these," I said to the prominent Harvard graduate with whom I happened to be talking, "are picayune cases."

"Of course they are," he said, "but they explain the attitude of the Harvard A. A. since Bingham took charge. Poor Mike Denihan, Harvard's immortal mascot, rode to his last Yale game in the back of an H. A. A. truck, to cut down expenses.

"Gene Burns had charge of the locker building for 38 years," he continued. "If he had lived through this fall he would have taken care of three generations of Harvard men—grandfathers, fathers and sons.

"But Gene, for the sweet sake of 'efficiency,' was moved around and finally sent to the squash courts as a cleaner. He may have died of cancer, after all, but I always suspected he died of a broken heart."

Pre-War Harvard Men Bitter Toward Bingham

These were sad cases, of course, for there never lived two grander souls than Mike and Gene, but still, this is not an indictment of Bingham. It is an indictment of one of the most fantastic football systems ever devised; a system whereby the head coach is a puppet who can name neither his assistants, his scouts, nor his opponents.

"You asked for a statement," the graduate continued, "and here it is. Bingham has thrown up a stone wall so that no graduate connected with Harvard athletics prior to Bingham's advent has any friendly feeling toward Harvard athletics at the present time. They feel as if they are not welcome."

Here's what another prominent Harvard graduate (and the members of the H. A. A. know both these gentlemen very well indeed) has to say:

"Bingham has made mistake after mistake in his athletic policies. Charlie Bradford, assisted by Johnny Donovan, did a grand job with the line last year. Bingham let them go.

"Bingham fired Swede Nelson, who was a good coach.

"He fired Rufe Bond, who coached freshman football, basketball and baseball.

"He asked Vic Kennard to stay as kicking coach, and Ed Wachter to remain as basketball coach. Then he hired Wes Fesler, the boy orator, and fired both Kennard and Wachter without notice.

"When Rufe Bond drew his release, Bingham engaged Art French as freshman coach. In two years, French's teams did not score a single point. And all this time, Charley Crowley, a Harvard graduate who was head coach of Columbia, has been walking around the streets of Cambridge without a job.

"But here was his crowning mistake, the graduate went

Boxing Crowds Increase

THE CROWDS at boxing shows throughout the country have been increasing during the past month. Eleven thousand persons attended the last show in the New York Garden. I think the fans are hungry for the right kind of ring attractions.

I believe a good card would attract a winning gate in this city. Jack Dempsey, in the role of referee, sold out Mechanics Building with the aid of a very ordinary wrestling card. Folks wanted to see the old' tiger bust a few grapplers on the chin. He accommodated.

The rugged Fitton A. C. football team of East Boston will play the unbeaten Sing Sing Blacksheep on November 18. "Alabama" Pitts, left halfback on the Sing Sing team, is rated as one of the greatest of football stars.

Sing Sing players do not always permit the use of their names on the program. I find such names as "Sal," "Scarpa," "Teddy" "Nut" and "Moon" in the lineup

College officials are assigned to the Sing Sing games.

Warden Lawes is considering an offer for the broadcasting of the Fitton-Blacksheep clash.

The New Rochelle Bulldogs have the greatest semi-professional team in the country with the possible exception of the Fittons.

Macaluso Gets Chance ...

LEN MACALUSO, former Colgate star, will receive an opportunity to win the world heavyweight wrestling championship when he clashes with Ed Don George in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Garden a week from tonight. Macaluso has forged his way out front in the heavyweight group, and is the most dangerous challenger for George's title.

If Max Baer would box one-tenth as much as George wrestles, he would do much to build back interest in the boxing game. George has never dodged a legitimate challenger. He has complete confidence in his ability to lick all comers.

YALE-GEORGIA TOSSUP, SAYS LOU LITTLE

By Lou Little
Head Coach, Columbia University
(Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service)

New York, Nov. 9—The games this week will pretty much determine the status of how Eastern football stacks up with other parts of the country.

To date, the East has done quite well and we are fortunate in being represented by teams that I should say are equally as good as in other sectors.

It is quite true that Minnesota is universally ranked as number one, but when you consider that only a margin of one touchdown separated the Gophers and Pitt, it is quite gratifying to the Easterns to feel that a break or two might have resulted in establishing Pitt as the outstanding eleven.

You will not find many teams a great deal better than Princeton. If the Tigers were to represent us in an intersectional contest for a mythical championship, you would find that they would do a pretty good pob.

I am not arguing the fact that the best football teams are situated in the East, but I do feel the East measures up to the other sections.

Navy, undefeated and untied, will meet Notre Dame in what looks to be the climax of its schedule.

If the midshipmen are able to get by this game, they will have an opportunity of facing Pittsburgh the following week with an unblemished record and the possibility of gaining national recognition.

YALE-GEORGIA CLOSE

Pittsburgh faces in Nebraska a resourceful, spirited squad of sophomores. Pitt will have to play football the entire 60 minutes to subdue the Cornhuskers.

The South will send to New York one of its finest representatives in Tulane, to face Colgate. From all reports and accounts this game should be an offensive battle of forward and lateral passing.

Syracuse, averaging something like 400 yards gained to a game, will receive a real test when the undefeated Michigan State team greets them at the opening kickoff.

The Yale-Georgia game is going to be about as close as anyone would wish.

The Georgia team has been a bit disappointing to date, and there is always the possibility of a team which has potential strength, to start rolling most any day without any warning.

Yale, on the other hand, has been improving with each game. It has unexpectedly won two games, the result being that the squad has acquired confidence and poise.

If Whitehead is able to return to the lineup, and if the boys will not suffer a letdown after last week's game with Dartmouth, Yale should turn back the Southern "gentlemen."

Manhattan can hardly withstand the power of Holy Cross. New York University should defeat C. C. N. Y., and Fordham should win over the West Virginia Mountaineers.

Army will have too much for Harvard. Ohio State is too strong for Chicago, while Minnesota should brush aside Indiana.

Stanford-Washington is one game that will, without a doubt, decide a sectional championship. Both have exceptionally well balanced teams with plenty of reserves.

A break at the outset may decide this contest, and I am looking for Stanford to win.

Pennsylvania and Penn State will have their traditional set-to, and, from all appearances, it looks as though Penn has just a little too much for State.

Michigan should win its second Big Ten Conference game at the expense of Wisconsin, Princeton doing about as she pleases with Lehigh, and Bob Zuppke's Illinois team should still be undefeated after disposing of Northwestern.

L. S. U. and Alabama will still be setting the pace for the top honors of the south and should win from George Washington and Clemson, respectively.

The Southern California-California game seems to be a toss-up.

ARMY HAS EDGE, SAYS HARDWICK

barn. Joe Stancook is the lad that unlocks the barn door.

Then, too, do not overlook Robert M. Stillman, an outstanding guard, powerful on defense, but whose greatest forte is his ability to pull out of the line on offense and lead the interference.

So tomorrow as you cheer Jack Buckler's brilliant dashes bend the knee figuratively in respect to the essential, although inconspicuous work of Stancook and Stillman, which made those dashes possible.

Tomorrow's game looks much like another defeat for the Crimson, as I cannot see where they match the Army in any department except spirit. Spirit can carry them far and can develop an interesting contest, but can hardly be expected to overcome the apparent inferiority of man power and experience.

on "Harvard had put forward the idea that three years of varsity football was enough for any young man and refused to play teams which did not have the same standards of eligibility.

This naturally excluded Army from the Harvard schedule, but Army stubbornly refused to accept it, after every recognized college in the land had done so.

"It was the West Point refusal to bar men who had played three years of varsity football which led to the historic break with the Navy.

"And right after the break, Bingham, representing Harvard, the original sponsor of the rule, signed Army to play Harvard, and left Navy holding the bag, all in the interests of gate receipts."

Well, athletic directors must be paid, mustn't they? (Harvard has a poor team because it draws poor material, you say? Well, mebbe so, mebbe so. Dave Egan will discuss the matter tomorrow.)

TUCKERMAN UP IN ARMS OVER DOO-DIDDY RACE POLITICS

HARVARD, ARMY READY FOR CLASH

By Bill Grimes

Harvard and Army are ready for tomorrow's clash in the Stadium. Army is quartered out with Mat Campbell at the Belmont Springs where the players loafed around this morning while the coaches and cadet managers [illegible] their putting [illegible]. The Army squad did not make any protests over the absence of the "Hell Cats" this morning. But, through habit, many of them were up and about before daylight. "Cappy" Wells, former intelligence officer at "The Point," is now located at Fort Hamilton, N. Y. During his spare time he is trying to arrange a game which will bring Coach Biff Jones' L. S. U. outfit to Gotham.

It may be that Harvard will tie up with Navy in 1936. If the Middies could receive permision to play in the Stadium, it would take some of the strain off the Crimson budget . . . Three years ago, Cleo O'Donell knew that Holy Cross would not be on the 1938 Harvard schedule . . . The West Pointers realize that in Navy they will meet a worthy foe this season, and deep down they are none too sure of the outcome . . .

Red Grange and the Chicago Bears, who hope to preserve their undefeated slate by beating the Redskins at Fenway Park on Sunday, arrived in town today. They will work out tomorrow morning and then attend the Harvard-Army game . . . Normie Rand will start for Dartmouth tomorrow against New Hampshire and may win a regular backfield berth before the Cornell meet. There are few more shifty ball carriers than this same Mr Rand.

LEAFS DEFEAT BRUINS, 5-3, IN OPENER

Toronto, Nov. 9—Boston's Bruins started the N. H. L. season with a defeat here last night, trailing the Toronto Leafs 5 to 3. A four-goal attack by the Leafs in the third period netted them the win.

Two Bruins were in the penalty box when the Leafs staged their third period rally after the Bostons had led halfway through the chapter.

The Bruins made an excellent showing despite their defeat. Until the Leafs made the third period scoring burst the Boston team showed a better brand of hockey, with Dit Clapper and Marty Barry doing good work. Clapper scored twice, Barry making one goal and having an assist on another tally.

Commission Candidates Ignorant of Sport, Expert Claims

By Jack Conway

Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., startled persons interested in horse racing in Massachusetts when he made the dramatic announcement he would sell his stable of horses, give up all interest in possible horse tracks, and accept a position on the racing commission, provided Governor Ely cares to name him for the post.

Tuckerman was a leader in the fight for legalized racing in Massachusetts. He carried his campaign to the legislature where it met with success and then to the voters.

Tuckerman has been associated with the Eastern Horse Club which has conducted race meetings at the Country Club in Brookline and [illegible] at great expense.

His [illegible]. He planned to take an active part in the proposed race track at the Norwood [illegible], a $2,000,000 proposition, and Tuckerman felt it would be the major track in Massachusetts.

BUNCH OF BOY SCOUTS

Then came the fight for positions on the Massachusetts Racing Commission. This column [illegible] horse racing and dog racing. It will be the final word in sports which will make [illegible] dollars from the bettors.

The effort was not satisfied with some of the men who were mentioned as possible members of the commission, for some of them lacked proper knowledge of horse and dog racing, which forced others [illegible] a seat on the post.

Tuckerman has the blessing of the group that fought for legalized racing. His statement follows:

HERE WE HAVE IT

"I have been approached lately by many persons interested in horse racing in Massachusetts, as well as the press, in regard to whether I would accept appointment to the Racing Commission.

"I worked hard for three years for horse racing, because I believed it was for the good of the state. I now feel very much concerned over the kind of a Commission that will supervise racing in Massachusetts. The Commission is all-important, and everyone should realize this fact.

"Heretofore I have looked forward to having something to do with the operation of a race track and continuing to run a stable of horses.

"As a result of my personal concern over the outlook for racing in the Commonwealth and the faith that so many persons have in me as standing for the highest ideals of the sport, I am glad to sacrifice any selfish ambitions I might have had to uphold these ideals as a member of the Massachusetts Racing Commission, if Governor Ely sees fit to appoint me."

Bo Lombard, a soph, weighs 170. [illegible] he'll be a [illegible] star [illegible] grid [illegible]. Takes good care of [illegible].

This season's [illegible] team. It's not only fast and strong, it's a tireless [illegible] hawk. Played the entire game [illegible] powerful Salem without a substitution, an accomplishment few teams can boast.

A team fit to carry on the traditions of the victory string which started in 1932. The latter year after Rindge won, Lawrence took two games, tied one, started winning and hasn't stopped—yet. Last year it won all regular season games, then downed M[illegible] in a post-season affair.

It knocked over Lexington, Worcester Commerce, Lynn English, Salem, St. James and Somerville this year. It visits Peabody on Monday afternoon, then Haverhill, Amesbury and Lowell wind up the season. This year has been difficult and excepting Amesbury any of the other three remaining offers a major test. The subs will be needed before the end.

SUB TACKLES STRONG

These include a second team of Fred Bernard and Lawrence Connelly, ends; John McKenna and Laurence Murray, star tackles; Vin Carroll and Tommy C[illegible], guards; George Tardugno, center; John Prone, quarter; Jerry Pertochi, Al Ursillo and Joe Geldes, halfbacks. Others are guards Peter O'Sullivan and Jerry Murphy, brother of John, tackle; Jim McGrady, center; John Lawlor, end; Al Ferrah, quarterback, a lefty passer; Ernie [illegible], halfbacks Phil Trovato and Richard Addison.

There's more to the picture than Coach Devlin and his players.

There's Headmaster Laurence J. O'Leary, himself a football star and coach of other years, and still a keen sportsman who enjoys the fact that many of the school's best athletes are classroom aces as well.

There's John W. Kenedy, capable and genial faculty head of sports, who keeps the budget in the black and has every bit of desired sports information on his tongue's tip.

There are Aurel Tremblay, ex-Georgetown; Eddie Donahue, ex-Villanova, and Ernie Perry, ex-Colby, the assistant football coaches who help build the Lawrence machine.

A great sports family. Go up and see it sometime.

to fill your pipe with cheap tobacco every fifteen minutes . . . or let a pipeful of Edgeworth last you an hour?

MY BOSS GETS 40 MINUTES WITH ONE LOAD OF EDGEWORTH.
MY BOSS FILLS ME WITH EDGEWORTH AND WE'RE GOOD FOR 50 MINUTES.
TALK ABOUT SAVING MONEY! YOU CAN'T BEAT EDGEWORTH FOR A LONG BURNING SMOKE.

PIPE SMOKERS are reporting forty minutes, fifty minutes—and even an hour a pipeful with Edgeworth. This is possible because of the way Edgeworth is made. There is a reason for its long-burning quality.

You pay 15 cents for a tin of Edgeworth—and it is worth it.

Before you decide that another tobacco at a lower price saves money for you, please find out how many hours of smoking you get for what you pay! Long-burning Edgeworth will help you keep your smoking bills down.

Why not be kind to yourself? Why not enjoy the superb flavor of Edgeworth in your pipe? Why descend to low-grade tobacco and spoil your comfort and pleasure when you can smoke high-grade, long-burning Edgeworth and save money besides?

Get a 15-cent tin of Edgeworth and put it to the test for a genuine economy smoke. Get the thrill of an hour a pipeful.

MANUFACTURER'S NOTE—The reason Edgeworth burns so much longer in your pipe is the extra Edgeworth process used in its preparation. It is a technical matter too complicated to describe here. We mention it so that you will know that the long-burning feature of Edgeworth is based on a definite fact. Not all pipe smokers can get an hour a pipeful from Edgeworth. That is because smoking methods differ. But any pipe smoker can get more hours of smoking out of Edgeworth than from fast-burning tobaccos. Larus & Bro. EXETER PICKED TO DEFEAT ANDOVER

By Walter Kiley

It takes a pretty rash person to try and pick the winner of the annual Exeter-Andover football game. The series between the two noted Phillips academies dating back almost as far as the Harvard-Yale meetings has been replete with one tremendous upset after another.

Usually the before the game favorite is found on the short end of the score after the game is [illegible].

But Martin Souders's Exeter team seems to [illegible] strong pretty [illegible] views all important [illegible] approaches. [illegible] the Red and Gray of the New Hampshire prep school should wave [illegible].

An Exeter-Andover game embodies all the color and lore of its big brother, the Harvard-Yale game.

Already the little town of Exeter, N. H., braces itself for the effect of the influx of alumni and friends who gather from all parts of the country for the last game fixture.

The big gun of the Exeter attack is Gordon Clark of Amesbury, who a year ago won the trophy awarded annually for the most proficient back. To date he has only scored 11 of his team's points in six games, which is [illegible] Coach Souders' remarks on his [illegible] fine teamwork.

Clark [illegible] for the trophy which was won by his brother [illegible] in 1933 and [illegible] Bill, [illegible] now a shining light in Dartmouth's backfield. Two years ago Tommy [illegible], Harvard sophomore backfield ace, walked away with the exhibition and the year before that Francis Lane was the recipient, Francis being the brother of Myles who now coaches the Crimson backfield.

Jay Wardley of Joliet, Ill., is the heaviest man in the Exeter backfield, 172 pounds, and is the only newcomer from a year ago.

Rhode Island State Mascot Missing

By Associated Press

Providence, R. I., Nov. 9.—In the dark of the night someone entered the barn at Rhode Island State College dairy farm, at Kingston, stole the college's football mascot—one two-year old ram with a kind disposition and a hearty appetite.

Dr. Raymond G. Bressler, president of the college, when informed of the theft, offered the cryptic comment: "I predict we'll see the ram at Storrs tomorrow." Storrs is in Connecticut and Rhode Island State plays Connecticut College at that town tomorrow.

The theft of the ram was discovered at 8 o'clock this morning when Harold Dodge, caretaker at the dairy, went to the barn to feed the stock. He notified Dr. Bressler. The kidnaping was kept quiet most of the morning, only a few of the student body having any knowledge of it, but when word spread around the campus plans were started for trips to Storrs tonight, with but one object—get the ram!

The student body chipped in a year ago and raised $25 to buy the mascot.

TERRIER COACH THINKS YALE WILL WIN

By L. B. "Pat" Hanley

Head Coach at Boston University

(Written exclusively for and copyrighted by the International News Service)

The [illegible] football season [illegible].

Harvard and Yale are playing [illegible] tomorrow, the [illegible] week. The [illegible] will attempt [illegible] defeated [illegible] affair will be two [illegible] tomorrow night [illegible] its two big [illegible] of the year.

The [illegible] Army game is New [illegible] a tradition tomorrow. [illegible] Casey certainly has [illegible] a difficult time with [illegible] inexperienced material and [illegible] though the Crimson [illegible] have to watch [illegible] charges [illegible] their fourth successive major game.

It is [illegible] fortunate that a coach [illegible] too often judged by results rather than the material he has. [illegible] mind Eddie and his hard working staff have brought as much [illegible] what they have as [illegible].

I [illegible] like to see Harvard give the Cadets a real tussle but the experienced West Point [illegible] with Jack Buckler and Captain Joe Stancook, two of the best backs in the East, carry too much power.

It looks as though Gar Davidson's gang is at least three touchdowns better than Harvard.

Down at the Bowl Yale meets another tough [illegible]. Those Georgia Crackers, even with three lickings on their record for this year, are still pretty tough. The last four times that Athens school has come North it has taken Yale into camp. It looks as though the Eli gets its long awaited revenge tomorrow, however.

YALE WAKES UP

Yale has broken away from its set offenses and defenses. The Bulldog now has a brilliant passing and running attack and is playing smart football.

I look for Yale to down Georgia in a real close affair by one touchdown.

Dartmouth after playing Harvard and Yale expects rather a soft afternoon from the University of New Hampshire. The Wildcats have been rather a disappointment this year but they have some manpower there and they may pull a surprise and give the Green a closer struggle than many believe. On form, however, Dartmouth should coast in by five touchdowns.

The only undefeated, untied and unscored upon team in New England, Tufts, faces Middlebury. Benny Beck's Panthers are a slight shifty and tricky team which uses the Warner offense very well.

Tufts should take this game by two touchdowns, but I would not be too greatly surprised to see a major upset occur in this game.

Northeastern, also undefeated, will undoubtedly feel the untimely and tragic death of [illegible], its young sophomore back. I do hope [illegible] the Huskies do not suffer mental reaction against Mass State tomorrow for they are strong enough to take the Staters by at least a touchdown.

University of Maine should hurdle Bowdoin without too much trouble and win the Maine championship. Maine has already defeated Bates and Colby and it has only Bowdoin in its way for the title.

The Polar Bears are not strong enough to contest the right of the Brice team and I pick Maine to win by a couple.

EAGLES SHOULD WIN

Williams meets Wesleyan in a Little Three game tomorrow. Williams should win this one by two and then prepare to meet Amherst for the title. Rhode Island State should cross Connecticut State's goal line at least three times and win its objective game by that margin.

It looks like a loss for Vermont when the Catamounts play Trinity tomorrow. The Connecticut school has an outstanding team this fall and is still undefeated. Trinity should win by at least two touchdowns.

Monday there will be two college games as part of the holiday program. Boston College plays host to Center and Bates clashes with Colby. Joe McKenney's team should take the Praying Colonels by two touchdowns and Bates should triumph over Colby by a close score.

Tech Cubs Put Trojans in Place

Tech's freshman basketball five is showing splendid form in the workouts at the Tech Hangar. Last night the Cardinal and Gray Cubs took the floor against the Boston Trojans and before yielding to the varsity five had held the professionals to an even score at four baskets each.

The stars of the '38 quintet are Bill MacCrocklin, the six-foot three-inch center, and Bob Br[illegible], left forward, although their margin of ability barely edges that of [illegible]winkle, and Schuman, who are at the defense stations.

Charlestown Tilts Trade at Fenway

Charlestown and Boston Trade elevens were due for battle at Fenway Park this afternoon. Trade was the favorite.

Other games of the day had Angel Guardian at Essex Aggies, Newton Country Day at Roxbury Latin, and Bridgton Academy at St. John's Prep in Danvers.

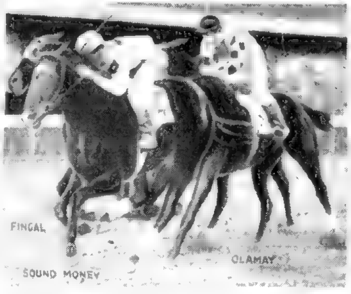
DIGNIFIED DAVE WILSON'S BEST BET

Pays $19.10 in Sound Money



Five favorites won at the Thursday meeting at Narragansett. There was only one double figure winner. That was Sound Money in the sixth. Not a part of the New Deal, despite the election, Sound Money paid $19.10. It was the second charity day at the track and a crowd of 15,000 wagered $371,102. TIME SUPPLY IS CHOICE TO WIN FIFTH RACE feature with Mrs. E. A. C[illegible] Time Supply, winner of the $25,000 added Narragansett special, packing top weight of 126 pounds. Despite his heavy package, this corner finds it impossible to go past the fleet son to Time Maker and Surplice in searching for the winner.

George C[illegible] Dignified, second to Judge J[illegible] a few days back, appears well placed in the mile and one-sixteenth of the sixth offering and is favored as the one best bet on the card.

TOWSON, MISS VINCE, BLIGHT HOPES

FIRST RACE—Purse $1000, claiming; maiden two-year-olds; six furlongs.
Hose Ma[illegible]
Radiator [illegible]
Miss Vince [illegible] Lineage 112
Blighted Hope [illegible] Reach 115
Sea O[illegible]
Towson [illegible]
Also eligible:
Great Master 115

TOWSON looms all over the winner of this number providing the track remains fast. His [illegible] efforts [illegible] may be tossed into discard. Prior to that [illegible] second to Shasta. MISS VINCE, an excellent mudder, is given top preference in case of a wet strip. BLIGHTED HOPES [illegible] run to her excellent morning trials in order to head the others.

MACHILLA, ANNARITA, PANA FRANKA

SECOND RACE—Purse $1000, claiming; three-year-olds and up; six furlongs.
Morehearts x103 Golden Effort x113
Annarita x110 Pana Franka x113
Machilla 111 Dabble 105
B[illegible] x103 Border Knight 106
Sir Chester 115 Aileen C. 108
Caboose 108

MACHILLA'S last effort may be tossed out. The track was against him in that effort. The Coburn coworker's best races have always been [illegible] race track. Annarita, a consistent track, figures to offer the contention. PANA FRANKA defeated a fairly strong field last out and looms next best.

HOME LOAN, CHORTLE, LADY FLINDERS

THIRD RACE—[illegible]
Lady Flinders x1[illegible]
Patent [illegible] 110 Queen [illegible] 113
Ross [illegible] 110 Home Loan x108
Yenoor x111 Hastings 110
Grandpa's B[illegible] 110 Holster 110
Pretty S[illegible] x105 Jeanne S. x105
Also eligible: [illegible] Count 113

Have a hunch that HOME LOAN will stand a world of beating in this number. If anything hops up and drabs him it will likely be CHORTLE. The latter is right at tops. LADY FLINDERS is dropping down quit a bit and must be accorded a high figure.

WISE ANNE, GOLDEN FATE, FEUDEL LORD

FOURTH RACE—$1200, claiming; three-year-olds and up; [illegible]
Golden Fate [illegible]
Judge Leer [illegible]
Feudel Lord [illegible]
Ca[illegible] Lass [illegible]
Ca[illegible]

Throw out WISE ANNE'S last effort and she [illegible] in this affair. [illegible] race was entirely too [illegible]. Prior to that she was beaten a head by the speedy Jabot at Empire City. FEUDEL LORD looks as good as anything else for the remainder of the spoils.

TIME SUPPLY, LADY REIGH, THOMASVILLE

FIFTH RACE—$3500 added, the Autumn handicap, for three-year-olds and up, one and one-sixteenth miles.
Prince Fox 103 a[illegible] 110
Safe and Sound 102 cQuel Jeu 101
Time Supply 126 cLady Reigh 110

bTera [illegible] Lynx Eye 103
aI. F. [illegible] and L. C. White entry.
bPercy M[illegible]
cArden Farm [illegible]

Must [illegible] TIME SUPPLY despite the fact that he is giving away large chunks of weight to each and every one of his opponents. His victory in the Narragansett Special of only a few days ago is all that could be desired. LADY REIGH is as nicely under 110 pounds and looms a cinch to head the others. THOMASVILLE is back on the fast side and may break into the picture.

DIGNIFIED, FLYING DON, BILLY CHAMP

SIXTH RACE—[illegible] three-year-olds and up; one and one-sixteenth miles:
Captain Ed 112 Sisko x104
Dignified x107 Flying Don x111
Balancer x1[illegible] Also eligible:
Tweed x103 Tuffy G. 116
Good Jest x1[illegible] Wamorac x1[illegible]
Glorifone [illegible] R[illegible] 109
Chalk Eye [illegible] Waconda 1[illegible]
Billy Champ [illegible] 10[illegible]
Bahadur 11[illegible]
Aymond [illegible]

DIGNIFIED appears to be a well placed thoroughbred in this number. Coming off a bangup second to Judge Judy and dropping nine pounds he needs only intelligent [illegible] FLYING DON would be dangerous in the mud, but I just can't see him heading the top one on the dry. BILLY CHAMP is a good deal better than recent efforts would have you to believe. Maybe [illegible] will turn him loose here.

BOOMS PAL, WAYLAYER, ADOBE POST

Booms Pal 1[illegible] Flint Rock x1[illegible]
[illegible]
Adobe Post 11[illegible] Lady Marnock 112
[illegible] x101 Robinson Crusoe 112
Also eligible:
[illegible] x113 Good Politian 109

My guess is BOOMS PAL, one that should have been a great deal closer in his last race. WAYLAYER in a race of this sort in his last outing, but finished far back in the ruck. May hap that he will show surprising improvement. ADOBE POST, a winner of two nice races at the meeting, is a hard thoroughbred to guess. Not [illegible] to know [illegible] up to win.

HASTIPAST, HAPPY SCOT, DE VALERA

SUBSTITUTE RACE—Purse $1000, claiming; three-year-olds and up; six furlongs.
Scoggie x110 Edie x103
D[illegible] x1[illegible] Wrack Ace x106
Ta[illegible] x1[illegible] De Valera 115
Tran[illegible] x106 Happy Scot x110
Alerah 111 Karonte 111
Technocrat 111 Hard Play x103
Also eligible:
Centermatch x110 Teenie R. x107
Funny Johnny 115 Sepoint x110
Hastipast 111 Affirmative x110

HASTIPAST is far down on the also eligible list in this number. However, if able to get postward he should cakewalk. The opposition is little more than he has drubbed in the past. HAPPY SCOT, a plater with a bit of class, has been freshened up slightly, and, according to the clockers, is ready for a bang-up effort. DE VALERA has evidently gone a long ways back in the wagering, but his class entitles him to better than an outside chance in an affair of this sort.

RAY PELLETIER LAID TO REST

Northeastern U. gridiron tradition was founded this morning when Ray Pelletier, 20-year-old football hero, made his last down.

The Salem scholar-athlete, who died Wednesday morning, was laid to rest in St. Mary's Cemetery where scores of chums and friends of both his high school and college days watched his last play—sl[illegible]

Six [illegible] who knew him well, three from Salem, and three from Northeastern University, bore the coffin from the late athlete's home, which adjoins the cemetery, to its final resting place in a little plot that can be seen from the window of the Pelletier home.

[illegible] had eleven, Stew Mayberry, Ray's roommate and Ken Cahoon, Husky ball-carrier, were the pallbearers chosen to represent the N. U. football team.

Players Killed as Bus Skids

By International News Service

Carrington, N. D., Nov. 9.—A tragedy of the highways left the Minot Teachers' College football team riddled with death and injuries today.

The bus carrying the squad to Valley City, N. D., to play the Valley City Teachers skidded off the snow-coveerd road on a curve near Heaton later yesterday, killing two persons and injuring 22 others.

Allan Aufforth, co-captain of the team, and Ora Marean, assistant coach, were killed. Six players received serious injuries. The bus driver, [illegible] Nielsen, was in a critical condition.

Pierce [illegible] Morton G. Bogue [illegible] and Reid, who was secretary in 1933-34, were renominated for their present positions. Hardt is a newcomer on the slate.

By Bob Ahearn

Two of the best pivot men in pro basketball will be seen in action next Monday evening at the Arena, when the Boston Trojans engage the New York Jewels in the opening American League game.

Al Kellett, who stands six feet four inches, will sport a Trojan uniform, while Matty Begovich, one-time St. John's College player, will start for the Gotham quintet.

Coach Fiddle Morley plans a three-hour practice session this afternoon at the West End House court, and expects to announce his opening game lineup today.

The pros were given a battle of it when they played a practice fray with the M. I. T. hoopsters yesterday at the M. I. T. hangar.

[illegible] who attend the [illegible] game would do well to watch the playing of Max Kinsbrunner at forward. After graduation from St. John's College of Brooklyn, he was sought by every club in the pro circuit, finally signing with Manager Eddie Wilde of the Jewels.

Glass backboards will be in vogue at the Arena games. General Manager G[illegible] Brown has installed them along with a new floor.

GREEN CAPTAIN STRICKEN

By Associated Press

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 9—Acting Captain Charles Herbert Stearns of the Dartmouth football team underwent an operation for acute appendicitis today at the college infirmary, Dick's House. Dr. John Gile, who performed the operation, said Stearns was "doing well."

Stearns, who lives in Mansfield, Mass., reported to Football Coach Earl Blaik that he was bothered [illegible] yesterday and was dismissed from practice early.

Last night he went to the infirmary and after an examination was put to bed in preparation for the operation this morning.

Stearns' loss to the Dartmouth team is the second major one of the season. Stearns was [illegible] appointed acting captain by Coach Blaik following injuries to Captain Jack Hill. Stearns' position at left guard will be filled tomorrow against New Hampshire University by Jack Billings.

Appointment of an acting captain will be made tomorrow before game time, Blaik [illegible] announced today. Stearns is a member of the senior class.

WALTHAM TEAM RISKS UPSET

Title hopes of unbeaten and untied Waltham High are endangered tomorrow afternoon when the team invades Medford, for the outstanding contest of the day among schoolboys.

Waltham at full strength is an alert, powerful team, which relies on a running attack for much of its ground gaining. Few teams have gained consistently against Medford without passing, and Waltham may be forced to take to the air.

Medford has shown a balanced offense, losing only to Everett, and the hard-charging Medford clan is the most formidable foe Waltham has met this fall. The game will produce some of the best grid tilting of the season.

Turnesa Given Wampanoag Post

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 9 (INS)—Internationally famous Joe Turnesa, golf pro at the old Belleclaire Golf Club at Bayside, Long Island, has been appointed pro at the exclusive Wampanoag Country Club. Joe will take over the job held for many years by Captain C. H. Perkins, veteran golfer, on April 1.

Turnesa has earned for himself an enviable record in tournament play in this country and England besides being a member of the first Ryder cup team to play in England in 1929 which won the Britain crown.

Equipoise Out of Riggs Handicap

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP)—Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's well-known Equipoise today was declared out of the Riggs handicap at Pimlico because of a "filled" leg.

A leg ailment also caused the withdrawal of F. M. Alger, Jr.'s Azucar, another top rank entry, from tomorrow's $7500 added, mile and three-sixteenth feature.

CHICAGO BEARS, REDSKINS TO MEET SUNDAY

A year ago this time, the Chicago Bears came steaming into Boston with an unsmirched record only to be given one of their two defeats of the season by the Redskins, 10-0.

Today, they wil come here again to meet the Redskins at Fenway Park Sunday afternoon. Once more they are undefeated. Once more they are apparently headed for the championship of the world. And once more they will present a line-up that is studded with stars—athletes like Red Grange, Beattie Feathers, Bill Hewitt, Bronko Nagurski and Jack Manders.

Engaged in a head to head battle with Detroit for the championship of the Western division, they are confident that they will score their ninth consecutive league victory. They do not see how the Redskins can possibly stop a machine which has rolled up 209 points in eight games and never has been limited to less than 20 points.

Beattie Feathers, indomitable Tennessean, who is running wild over the opposition, and the famous Red Grange, idol of Young America for more than a decade, are the newest and oldest sensations with the Bears. Yet they are but two of the fine players. Imagine three All-Professional first team choices and three All-pro second team selections playing subordinate roles to the sensational Feathers and immortal Grange. Such is the situation with the Bears.

Bronko Nagurski, powerhouse fullback and incomparable line-plunger, Bill Hewitt, considered the finest end of all time by many critics, and 226-pound Joe Kopcha, impassable guard, are All-Professional first team choices from 1933 who are almost certain to be renominated this season.

No one can question their greatness which has been proved in every game of the National League season.

Fittons Play Sing Sing on Gridiron

The Fittons pro football club of East Boston, one of the leading gridiron teams in New England considered today a tentative invitation of Warden Lewis E. Lawes to play the Sing Sing Prison eleven, the Black Sheep, at the prison on November 18. No home-and-home agreement appeared likely.

CYCLE STARS AT TOPSFIELD

The finals of the qualifying rounds to unearth the New England motorcycle champion for 1934 will be held on Sunday, November 11, at the Topsfield Fair Grounds starting at 2 p. m. Leading riders of New England will battle through a card of nine races for the privilege of entering the final sweepstakes event and a banner crowd of motorcycle enthusiasts and thrill seekers will be on hand.

The meet will be featured by the appearance of Jimmy Hill of Springfield, present New England champ, and Woods Castonguay, national amateur hill climbing leader. Mitch Lullercash and Fred Whittier of Ipswich, "Spike" Moncouskey of Haverhill, Eddie Dow of Boston and Louis Gustafson of Reading. The Pawtucket team of Jesse James and Walt Brown is expected to furnish the fireworks.

The last meet was postponed after "Spike" Moncouskey had crashed through the fence due to a high wind.

Allston Eleven Seeking Game

The Allston Moose Club is without a game for Sunday and would like to play some strong 140-pound team at or away from home. Call Johnny Moore during the day at Devonshire 9558, or between 6-7 at Newton 5508-R.

BILL-IKE SEES BROADWAY

tlemen! The living, breathing, smiling specimen of the sleepless man. He proves to you, at his ripe old age, with his ruddy cheek and sparkling eye, that all this early to bed and early to rise stuff is the bunk."

Home-Body

Coming in, he had reckoned that New York was a good-sized place all right. The Pennsylvania station was even a little more impressive than the South terminal in Boston.

Of course, you know, and if you don't, you've probably guessed, that Bill-Ike has hitherto been no traveler. He went to Portsmouth, N. H., once. Back, maybe, 15, 16, 17 years ago. Orleans is good enough for him, outside of perhaps a little jaunt around the Cape.

It wasn't long before Bill-Ike had a good full glass of clear water and over through the bright lights of Times square he went in a taxicab. Bill-Ike was being convoyed to a "bright spot," the Paradise Cabaret.

Bill-Ike wanted to get out and walk. So he and his convoy got out and walked. He didn't get hit by the whizzing automobiles and while he was impressed by the flood of electrical signs and lights, he wasn't exactly dazzled. That is, no one would ever know it from Bill Ike.

The old Cape Codder kind of shied when he hit the lobby of the Paradise. That's where all the out-of-towners go when they want to have something to tell the folks about back home. Sometimes even New Yorkers go there.

Against the velvet-hung walls in the long-staired lobby at the Paradise they have enticing and alluring pictures of the ladies of the ensemble and the stars waiting for you upstairs. Bill-Ike looked. Paused. Looked. Then he said:

"Well, as long as we're here, boys, I s'pose I might as well."

He was a little uncomfortable when they led him to a ringside seat and turned a spotlight on him.

And if it wasn't the shadows, Bill-Ike's face positively got red when wise-cracking N. T. G., who is a master of ceremonies called Nils T. Granlund, started in with something like this:

"There he is now. What a man. Look at him, folks—Bill-Ike Small from Orleans, Cape Cod. Stand up, Bill-Ike, let the boys and girls see the man who hasn't slept for 64 years. Wha-a-at a man!"

And Girls

This last business of no sleep for 64 years was, of course, poetic license, or something, but Bill-Ike looked at the boys and girls kind of sheepishly and got up to take his bows.

Then they brought a bevy of those little girls over and sat them all over the Cape Codder while the photographers banged away. Only the girls had more clothes on than their pictures in the lobby showed.

Well, it went on like that. Bill-Ike's eyes popped at the wiggling danseuse in the metallic paint. The flashes of nudity that just naturally are reserved for the ringside customers left him gasping.

There were a lot of other things in Bill-Ike's Broadway debut, but this was the high spot.

And when he got back to the hotel—not to sleep, only to clean up and read until broad daylight—the only thing that bothered him was his feet.

Jimmy Cagney Stars in "The St. Louis Kid" at the Fenway, Paramount

By JOYCE DANA

The knights of the road who drive their mammoth trucks along the national highways, come in for their share of fun and glory in "The St. Louis Kid," which brings James Cagney to the screen at the Paramount and Fenway Theaters.

As usual Jimmy is full of blarney and bragging, this time as Eddie Kennedy who gets in with all the skill and twice the speed of an Oldfield on the race tracks. When his truck collides with Ann Reid's car, Eddie meets his long deferred match in wit and wisecracks, and the meeting is the beginning of one of those beautiful friendships that gets underway when two young people are convinced that they thoroughly detest each other.

In living up to his reputation as a slugger with some unique wrestling tactics, Eddie knocks out one Farmer Brown, head of the local milk trust, and thereupon finds himself involved in the dairymen's strike, when embattled farmers waylay milk trucks and dump the contents in an effort to raise the price of milk.

For his misdemeanors Eddie is confined to the Ostopolis jail, where there's a kindly card-playing jailer, absolutely no discipline and an opportunity to take the evening off and go dancing with Ann. But on this particular night Farmer Brown is killed by the thugs who have been pressed into service to run the milk deliveries through the farmers barricade. On her way home Ann witnesses the killing, is thereupon kidnaped by the burly gangster and Eddie is suspected of having committed the crime while enjoying his unauthorized sojourn from behind prison bars.

It's all straightened out in the end, with some fast and exciting melodramatic moments to add to the general hilarity that precedes them. Eddie gets out of jail and into wedlock with his customary despatch, having tricked the crook and won the girl with the same nonchalance that accompanies all his screen adventures.

Cagney fans will find Jimmy at his best as the whirlwind truck driver, but even his considerable comedy talents are taxed by a grand performance by Allen Jenkins as Buck Willets, the side-kick and partner in fun who gets into trouble just as fast as his pal gets them both out of it.

Patricia Ellis is at her prettiest and most convincing in a tantrum or two with her boy friend, and expert comedy roles are handled by Spencer Charters as Messeldopp the jailer, and Arthur Aylesworth as the Ostopolis judge. Robert Barrat, Addison Richards and Dorothy Dare are in the supporting cast.

On the same program is "Elinor Norton," a somewhat indifferent adaptation of Mary Roberts Rinehart's best-seller, "The State vs. Elinor Norton." Claire Trevor has the role of the harrassed young woman married to a neurotic and insufferable husband, Gilbert Roland is the strong and noble young man who wins her in the end, and Henrietta Crossman and Norman Foster appear in featured roles in the highly dramatized tale of another long suffering heroine and a complicated love triangle.

New York, November 9.

Jimmy Durante will not play Boston in "Calling All Stars" as your envoy predicted ten days ago. The exact wording of the prediction, as I remember, was that Durante was obliged to go to the West Coast to make retakes on a picture. Well, Phil Baker and Lou Holtz are now cast in the leads of "Calling All Stars." Deduce what you may. It has no significance to me other than Durante had some retakes to make and Lew Brown couldn't wait.

I talked with Sam H. Harris today, immediately following his arrival from Chicago where his show "As Thousands Cheer" is turning them away. Sam was very tired, and so was I.

He said, "I hope that 'Bring On the Girls' lives up to the Harris standard."

"Bring On the Girls" will open at the Plymouth Theater on November 26.

He said

"We are experimenting. I think it is a pretty good show. If you like it, it is enough for me. I don't see how it can miss. We withdrew the play after a week in Washington for some revision. This is to me a successful operation with a new show. You were with me in 1929 when 'June Moon' had a more or less precarious opening in Atlantic City. I closed the show for re-writing and re-casting. It was a smash hit. I don't dare venture a prediction about 'Bring on the Girls,' but I do know that the formula was correct.

"If an attraction is not completely correct, out-of-town, it should be re-cast and re-written for the next important city."

Two weeks before Christmas, S. N. Behrman, that expert author, will permit Boston to view his new play, "Rain From Heaven." Jane Cowl will play the lead. Her last appearance in Boston was in a very bad play called "Sweet Bells Jangled." Her next appearance will probably be in an excellent play, because Mr. Behrman is one of those few mortals able to transfer a thought to paper.

Thomas Mitchell, the star of "Little Accident," "Cloudy With Showers," and "Clear All Wires," will be the star of a play called "Pie in the Sky," written by a Boston drama critic, who will, for the moment, be nameless. Dorothy Mackaill will play opposite Mr. Mitchell, and among the other actors will be Don Rowan, Sam Levene, Margot Stevenson, Garson Canaan, Coburn Goodwin and Paul Huber.

In Concert

Rosina Scotti, above, who will give a concert at Steinert Hall this evening. The young singer, who is a native Bostonian, will be assisted by a string ensemble under the direction of Alfredo Anzalone.

CLARK GABLE IS ASSIGNED LEAD IN CONSTANCE BENNETT'S NEXT FILM

Robert Leonard Will Direct Clark and Connie in "Town Talk" Film for M-G-M

Los Angeles, Nov. 9—Someone once laughingly said, "the office boys of today are the producers of tomorrow." Well, maybe not exactly that but here's an interesting situation. Five years ago Clark Gable played a laundry man—just a bit in the "Easiest Way" with Constance Bennett. Today he was signed for the male lead opposite her in "Town Talk," a Bernie Hyman production.

What I mean to say is this—Clark gets co-starring billing with Constance Bennett and rightly too, for he is one of the biggest shots in pictures today. Robert Leonard is directing the picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and it's Bennett's next, and starts shortly.

That superb actor, Paul Robeson, is coming to Hollywood. He will support Will Rogers in "Steamboat Around the Bend," a story of the Louisiana Bayous, by Ben Lucien Berman. We are told that here is one story of the river district that doesn't deal with show boats, but it does give Robeson an almost equal break with that beloved humorist, Will Rogers, and it ought to be a good picture with both of them as headliners. Sol Wurtzel is scheduled to put this one on the screen for Fox.

I happened to run into Adolphe Menjou on his way to luncheon with his wife, Verce Teasdale. He was unshaven and wore a Tyrolean hat on the back of his head. "Just in the cause of art," he told me, and for a picture he is making at the moment. He is now all set for the lead in Erich Pommer's "Thunder in the Night." Interesting how many of these talented Germans are in Hollywood, all of them formerly associated with UFA. The next Pommer number is based on a play, "A Woman Lies" by Ladislo Fodor, a Hungarian author, but an American, Seaton I. Miller is writing the screen play.

John Cromwell just back from a tour of Ireland, England, and other places in Europe steps right into the job of directing Francis Lederer in "The Three Musketeers." Lederer's next for RKO. Mrs Cromwell (Kay Johnson) who went traveling in Europe with John, remains in New York to buy her winter wardrobe. Alan Hale plays Porthos in "The Three Musketeers," Jane Murfin is busy writing the script. Francis brought cute Mary Anita Loos (niece of Anita) to the Beverly Derby today and took her to the Adrian party last night. He's making all Mary's boy friends very jealous.

Chatter in Hollywood

This is hot off the griddle and comes to me from a source close to attractive Sue Caro. Seems James Crofton is giving Henry Wilson, juvenile actor, plenty of hot competition for Sue's smiles. Crofton was formerly married to Mona Rica and their matrimonial difficulties occupied much space in the newspapers. Crofton, a sportsman, was at one time supervisor of the races at Agua Caliente.

Snapshots of Hollywood

The FRANK McHUGHS expecting the stork in February; JOCELYN LEE, ex-wife of LUTHER REID, wearing a new ring, placed on her finger by JAMES SEYMOUR, whom she is expected to marry; JEAN HARLOW, WILLIAM POWELL, MYRNA LOY, ARTHUR HORNBLOW and three or four others, listening to the election returns over the radio, and discussing all the curious election wagers. ARTHUR owes HERMAN MANKIEWICZ for a bet made on SINCLAIR months ago he says he is willing to pay; GLORIA STUART fighting the flu; MRS. KATE CUMMINGS planning to spend Christmas in New York with CONSTANCE CUMMINGS and BENN LEVY. CONNIE returns to America to go into a Broadway play; EMIL JANNINGS writes friends he would like to return to Hollywood and make a picture; the Little Club opens with its first party of the season Saturday; W. S. VAN DYKE throwing a big soiree the same night; LORETTA YOUNG lunching with JAMES COWAN; UNA O'CONNOR will be forced to spend months in bed following her severe spill from her horse. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Bowdoin Films

Continuing at the Bowdoin Square for the remainder of the week is a double feature program, which brings Robert Montgomery and Maureen O'Sullivan to the screen in "Hideout," a comedy romance of a racketeer who reformed. Elizabeth Patterson and Mickey Rooney are featured in the cast.

On the same program is the latest Bing Crosby star picture, "She Loves Me Not," with Miriam Hopkins and Kitty Carlisle in featured roles. Five acts of vaudeville and selected short subjects complete the Bowdoin program.

Lovely Heroines of Yesterday and Today

Constance Bennett has the role of the fickle Duchess in "The Affairs of Cellini," opening tomorrow at the Uptown.

Nancy Carroll is one of the many stars in "Transatlantic Merry-Go-Round," new screen attraction on Loew's Orpheum program.

Jeanette MacDonald brings her charms to the famous Lehar operetta, "The Merry Widow," in its second week at Loew's State.

"Power" Held at Fine Arts

The Gaumont-British film "Power," with Conrad Veidt in the leading role, will be held over for another week at the Fine Arts Theater. The powerful drama, based on the celebrated novel, "Jew Suss" by Lion Feuchtwanger, is set in the mid-18th century, and tells of the rise of Jew Suss from the lowly surroundings of the Wurttemberg Ghetto to become the most powerful political force in the province.

Conrad Veidt's excellent characterization is one of the finest single contributions to talking films. Frank Vosper, Benita Hume, Pamela Ostrer, Haidee Wright and Cedric Hardwicke are featured in this all English film, which has broken all records at the Fine Arts.

Turn to the classified page today and select the rental ad that appeals to you. Then go to R. H. White Company and consult with Barbara Holmes. She will save you both time and money.

Coming to Met

The screen attraction at the Metropolitan to follow "Limehouse Blues" is "The Pursuit of Happiness," story of Revolutionary days, with Francis Lederer in the leading role. Joan Bennett, Charlie Ruggles, Mary Boland and Walter Kingsford are featured in the cast.

Anna Sten's Film

"We Live Again," Samuel Goldwyn production, based on Tolstoy's classic novel "Resurrection," with Anna Sten and Fredric March as co-stars, will be the next attraction at Loew's State Theater following the engagement of "The Merry Widow."

Cowboys whoops and yells were shamed to silence when more than 500 Boston Evening American newsboys visited the Rodeo at the Boston Garden. Lungs trained by shouting "Extra" competed against western cries of "Yippeeeee" and you can guess who won. They were led by Charles "Big Chief" Brickel. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

Lungs of Colonel W. T. Johnson's cowboys had a rest at the Boston Garden rodeo last night, because Boston Evening American newsboys were present in the huge amphitheater.

There were more than 500 newsies present from all parts of Greater Boston and the bronc riders and the bull-doggers and the rest were cheered plentifully through the evening.

The boys assembled at the Boston Evening American offices, 5 Winthrop square, and were given a police motorcycle escort along the route to the Garden at the North Station.

CHRISTMAS SAVINGS GROW

Christmas Club deposits in Massachusetts mutual savings banks, amounting to $8,000,000, are far ahead of last year, according to an announcement by the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks. That figure is made up of the savings of 200,000 depositors.

Four other New England states out of the 14 states where mutual banks operate the clubs, share [illegible] the material gains, the announcement said.

Connecticut has $2,606,149; Maine, $780,161; New Hampshire, $670,039, and Rhode Island, $454,800. The total in the 14 states has increased from $31,220,409 last year to $33,[illegible],419, the report shows.

for manufacturing pipe tobacco is different from any other process or method of manufacturing tobacco.

Again, the Wellman Process we believe gives more enjoyment to pipe smokers than any other manufacturing process now in use—

. . . it gives the tobacco an extra flavor and aroma

. . . it makes the tobacco act right in a pipe—burn slower and smoke cooler

. . . it leaves a clean, dry ash—no soggy residue or heel in the pipe bowl

The Wellman Process is used exclusively in the manufacture of Granger Rough Cut Pipe Tobacco.

Mussolini Gets Along Swimmingly These Days

Premier Mussolini of Italy forgets the cares of state by going swimming and boating. Here he is shown after a plunge in Rome. And when it comes to swimming, Il Duce takes water from very few, not that his opponents in a race are afraid to defeat him, but that he is such an excellent waterman. Johnny Weismuller take notice. The Premier always enjoys a swim or some other athletic execise. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!

● On this page are submitted the latest reports received from Camel smokers...real experiences of real people. Miss Helen Hicks, Shepard Barclay, Pilot Marrs, Charles Stephens, Jr., Miss Eve Miller. Miss Miller has an exacting job as a New York department-store executive. She says: "I started to smoke Camels because I appreciate mildness and delicacy of flavor. I found, too, that Camels give me a 'lift' when my energy is low—and Camels never upset my nerves."

Camels are milder—a matchless blend of costlier tobaccos! Smoke them all you want. They never jangle your nerves.

BRIDGE EXPERT: "Bridge involves terrific nerve strain," says Shepard Barclay. "Smoking is a help to concentration. I prefer Camels because I can smoke them steadily without jangled nerves. They're always mild!"

CHAMPION GOLFER. Miss Helen Hicks says: "I can always quickly restore my energy with a Camel. It's a 'lift' that I enjoy often. And I find I can smoke Camels constantly without a sign of jangled nerves."

PRE-MEDICAL STUDENT, Charles Stephens, Jr., says: "There are times when I feel completely 'done in'! But a Camel quickly erases that tired feeling. And Camels are a milder cigarette—they don't upset the nerves!"

TRANSPORT PILOT: "When I notice that 'all in' feeling, I pull out a Camel and light up," reports Maurice Marrs. "And the tiredness is quickly relieved."

TO KEEP PEACE, HUSBAND AND WIFE SHOULD NOT PLAY GAMES TOGETHER

Given in Marriage

By ADELE GARRISON

Avis' swoon at the close of the wedding ceremony turns out to be a sham. Katherine, who discovers it, tells Avis she knew Avis was only pretending.

CHAPTER 183

AS AVIS ARLEN slumped against Harry Underwood in what appeared to be a swoon, I thanked my particular little joss that her mother and Philip Veritzen, upon the other side, were looking toward Noel and Mary, whose marriage ceremony had only just been concluded, and did not see her.

A swift glance around told me that all other eyes save mine were also fixed upon the bridal party. Putting aside my wish to go up with the rest to congratulate Noel and wish Mary happiness according to the time-honored custom which forbids congratulations to a bride, I moved swiftly to a position directly in front of Avis so that I screened her from any chance glances.

"As soon as we can get her out of here, have Katherine come into the little study," Lillian whispered. "If her mother sees her you'll have to let her come too, I suppose, but I think we'll have her back here before anybody misses her. Thank the Lord that door at the side here is open. Sidle along in front of us, Madge, and I think we'll turn the trick. Got her, Harry? All right, heave ho!"

AVIS CARRIED OUT

I did not know just how they were going to manage this exit of an apparently unconscious figure, but I knew their resourcefulness, and I was not surprised to see Avis apparently walking from the room between them. I knew that they were holding her upright in an iron grip and that her feet were not touching the floor, but the impression given to any casual eye was that of three people walking close together.

As soon as they were through the side door into the hall, I shut it after them and making my way to Katherine, gave her Lillian's message. Then by a separate exit I made my way again out of the living room, seeing from beneath my lowered eyelids that Mrs. Arlen had not yet missed her daughter.

In the little study, when I reached it, I found Avis stretched out upon the couch where Harry and Lillian had laid her.

SHAMMING'

She was apparently unconscious and Katherine leaning above her with a practiced hand upon her pulse, suddenly detached that hand and gently lifting the girl's eyelids, looked at the pupils of the eyes beneath them. Then she straightened herself and turning her back upon the girl, formed with her lips the one word, "Shamming"

The word could not possibly have been heard by Avis, and she made no movement, remaining in her death-like posture while Katherine spoke aloud.

"There is no danger. It's a simple faint from which she's likely to come out any minute. Willl you get me some water, Harry?"

A QUICK RECOVERY

Her voice uttered the request, but her eyes significantly negated it, and Harry's movement toward the door was slow and deliberate, with a palpable waiting for recall.

With a little smile playing around her lips, Katherine winked deliberately at us, then, turning back to the couch, made a sudden swift, almost stealthy movement which I could not see, but the evidence of which was promptly manifest as Avis opened her eyes wide and squealed, "You pinched me!"

"Oh, my dear child!" Katherine's voice fairly dripped honey and maple syrup. "That wasn't a pinch. That was simply a test of your reactions, to see whether you were conscious, or really in a swoon. I am so glad you didn't really faint, but just felt like it. Of course I realize that you hadn't actually swooned when I looked at your eyeballs just now. I could tell by your eyelids, although you're a pretty good actress; you kept them almost still. But I didn't want to judge you without all the tests, so I lifted your eyelids, and then gave you what you are pleased to call a pinch. Now, if you feel ill, I'll get you anything you wish, but don't try to pull any more pretending faints on me. I've been nursing too long for that."

The Jackets Have It

What's the most comfortable thing to wear when you play golf in the winter? What's the most comfortable kind of wrap to wear when you want to skate, or bicycle, or walk and don't want anything to interfere with your leg room? What's nice for horseback riding? What's nice on the campus?

There's an easy questionnaire . . . all together now . . . Leather Jackets! You can't get away from it. They are cozy little affairs and they give so much service.

Suedes have stolen the show and for many seasons now, but this year a new star is threatening. It's pig grain leather. It is nice and sturdy, and very handsome because it looks exactly like pigskin. It is warm, and not too heavy or bulky. It sets comfortably on the shoulders, and is supple enough to look smart when belted.

The new grain leathers have an advantage over the older favorite, suede. It does not soil so quickly, and they can be very easily cleaned with some of these marvelous new cleaners, all by yourself. Then they can stand more rough and tumble than suede without showing it the least particle.

Vivid Woolly Sets for the Winter Girl

NOT LONG NOW until pongs slide over country roads with merry burdens . . . when sun glints on icy mirrors that invite sharp runners . . . when you'll be taking week end walks along lanes bordered by snow-hung pines and silvered birches . . . for all those happy, out-of-doors times—whether you're young in years or in spirit—you'll need pretty warm woolen things. Like this three-piece white wool set of cap, tie and gloves, splashed with spruce green. Or the bittersweet round-necked sweater that looks hand knit. Both are remarkably kind to the budget. It's not too early to remind you that they'd make a nice gift for that curly-haired, rosy school girl you know.

If you would like to know where any of the sports accessories may be seen in Boston, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Announcing Betrothal at Sorority Bridge Tea

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to announce my engagement at a bridge and tea in about a week. Will you kindly assist me in the following questions.

1. All the people who will attend will be my sorority sisters and my other girl friends. Is it correct to ask my fiance's mother?

2. If the weather is clear it will be held outside. I am not having it at home. What would be the correct thing for me to wear . . . a soft chiffon or just a crepe afternoon dress?

3. What type of invitations shall I send? M.

1. Since this is to be such an important party as your engagement-announcement party, it would be gracious of you to invite your fiance's mother. Even though you are having only your girl friends as your other guests, it would still be nice to invite your fiance's mother, to greet your guests, with you and your mother.

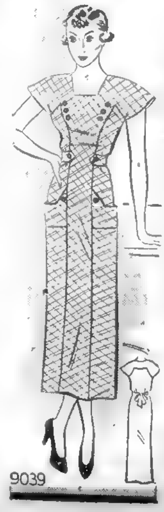
2. The chiffon dress would be more charming and appropriate for you to wear.

3. You may send your invitations on your visiting-card or on your mother's visiting-card. If you wish to have the party given in her name, which would be most appropriate and in best form. If your mother uses her visiting-card, she might write your name under hers. Then, in the lower left corner of the corner,

Bridge
3 o'clock.

If you don't wish to have the invitations sent on visiting cards, notes of invitation, preferably written by your mother, would be thoroughly proper.

Beginner's Six-Piece Pattern



By MARIAN MARTIN
PATTERN 9039

You might search and search for a house frock simpler to make than this, but it would be awfully difficult to find. There are only six pieces to the whole pattern and two of these are for the pockets and belt. The fact, however, that this design is simple does not lessen its chic. That long front panel gives a nice slimming effect, the half-belted waistline is very new, and the short sleeves cap the arms becomingly. A pretty cotton plaid would be a nice choice for this house frock, with bright colored buttons to set off the panel and pockets. When you have finished with it you'll be proud of the result!

Pattern 9039 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 3[illegible] yards 36 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Send your order to Boston American Pattern Department, 232 West 18th Street, New York, N. Y.

Popovers

1 cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 cup milk

Beat the eggs. Add the milk. Sift the flour and the salt together and add to the milk and egg mixture. Beat with the rotary egg beater until the batter is free from lumps. Half fill hot greased muffin pans. Put in a hot oven, 450 reg. F., for 15 or 20 minutes, until the popovers are brown. Reduce the heat to 350 deg. F. and continue making for about 15 or 20 minutes longer. Serve as soon as possible.

Restaurant Coats

If the fashion of the Restaurant coat achieves prominence, it will owe its fame to the repeal of liquor. This important event has had much to do with the return of many of the leading fashions. People are dining out more. Cocktail dresses and long-sleeved dinner dresses are extremely important. Naturally their significance would bring about the fashion of the long length.

IT'S YOUNG AGAIN

This year Hudson seal becomes one of the youngest furs anyone would want to wear. There is definitely a greater suppleness about it, and this makes for lighter weight and more possibilities in manipulating. Because designers who understand young effects, simplicity, originality of neckline have worked with this fur, you can be sure of a big difference in the coats you will see when you go shopping this season.

AN EASY SILHOUETTE

One of the styles bidding for first place in the fur picture is the full length box silhouette. They look decidedly new, for while they belong to the family of the swagger coat, they are much slimmer and always more precisely tailored. Very often the free and easy swing of it is made possible because only a single clip or button fastens it at the neckline.

Love Flies Out Window When Play Begins

By Sheilah Graham

First Bridge Player: "I always get a kick out of playing bridge with my wife."

Second Bridge Player: "That's the worst of playing with your wife."

The first lad was kidding, the second wasn't, but the above conversation accomplished something. It started me thinking, and hard. Should husband and wife play bridge—or, for that, any other competitive games—golf, tennis, swimming, etc.—together?

It is an old question never yet satisfactorily settled. Here and now I stake my reputation on the negative.

Not only does the husband-wife sport partnership preclude happiness in marriage, but it nearly always prevents success in the sport itself.

In the realm of golf the lady champ and the gentlemen champs admire each other—from the other side of the green.

Several years ago a handsome young male champion swimmer met a beautiful young female champion swimmer. They disregarded all warnings and were wed.

BEGINNING OF THE END

That, ladies and gentlemen, was the beginning of the end of the romance between Johnny Weissmuller and Bobby Arnst.

Now for the greatest of all the happy marriage bugaboos — Bridge. It is the most difficult game partnership for husband and wife to sidestep. But it is the one that should be the most strenuously avoided.

The contract Culbertsons appear to give the lie to my contention. Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson are extremely devoted to each other. Their married life could be used as a model on "how to be happy though bridge players." If bridge for the Culbertsons were a game. But it is not—it is a business, a hard, grinding dead serious business. The stakes for which they play are not a few cents or dollars, but the bridge supremacy of the world.

They have no time or inclination for squabbling at the bridge table. Which cannot be said for their myriad followers.

New Mascara Needs No Brush

By the Beauty Editor

JUST WHEN WE THOUGHT that cosmeticians the world over had finally exhausted their tricks for making lovely ladies more lovely, out pops a new gadget from their bag of tricks to make our eyes things of sheer glamour and allure.

It's practically limitless—and uncanny—the way these beauty experts have of doing things to startle and confound us. Perhaps you've seen the new brushless mascara that looks like a lipstick and which you can flick on your lashes in no time at all. If not, and if you are in search of a real find, let me introduce you to a gadget that you'll bless all the rest of the days.

No brush, no muss, no fuss—is my slogan for this brand new mascara. It is as easy to use as a lipstick and just as convenient to carry. You merely touch the tip to water then flick it on your lashes. It does away with the old fashioned hair-brush business getting mascara into your eyes.

Naturally it is "tearproof" and if you use it as an eyebrow pencil, no water is required. It's purity is guaranteed, so you can use it without fear of harming your eyes. The way the lashes pick up just the right amount of mascara from the stick is quite amazing.

If value means anything to your budget, our advice is to go and seek it out. One large Boston department store is featuring it this week and they are so enthusiastic over what it can do that I expect great things for its future.

I am not going to quote you the price, but let me assure you that it is the first time I have ever heard of a fine mascara selling at such a very small cost. It comes in a black and silver case and boasts of three shades—black, brown and blue.

If you would like to learn the name of this brushless mascara and where it is sold, phone the Beauty Editor, Liberty 4000. Should you prefer writing for this information send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Beauty Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston.

As Easy to Use As a Lipstick

POSED BY KITTY CARLISLE

Easy Way to Reduce Waistline

Question: Will you please tell me how to reduce my hips and stomach? I have been wearing a girdle for a long time but it doesn't seem to help any. Is there any cream that will reduce my bust or will exercise help?— E. V. S., Boston.

Answer: I have a set of waist, hips and bust reducing exercises which you may have by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to this department. I am sure they will help in taking off the dreaded pounds.

Lash Darkener

Question: I would like to know if there is any preparation on the market which will darken eyebrows and lashes naturally. I have red hair and my brows and lashes are absolutely colorless. My mother forbids the use of mascara, dyes and pencils. My eyes are not bad looking, but I would like to overcome that "blank" look which colorless brows and lashes seem to give.— R. R. C., Everett.

Answer: There are any number of good mascaras on the market which do not give an artificial look to the eyes. I would suggest that you experiment with various products in the brown tones until you find that which is best suited to your type. Home-made mascaras have not proven satisfactory as expert skill and expensive dyes must go into their making to prove entirely safe and effective.

Bidding a 1½ Honor-Trick Hand

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

When your partner's opening bid is immediately overcalled by the next opponent, you, as the responding hand, with a weak or indifferent holding, can pass in complete safety. The fact that one of the opponents has obligingly overcalled assures you that your partner will have a chance to bid again, and thus there is no necessity for you to raise or show another suit on a meagre hand merely to give your partner a chance in case he has a near two-bid.

On those occasions when you fail to give a free raise and when in spite of this your partner, on the second round of bidding, takes some strong action, you, if you hold any strength, must show it. On the hand below East quite properly failed to support his partner on the first round but subsequently made two voluntary bids on a poorly distributed hand with only 1½ honor-tricks.

West, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

North:
♠ 9 7 2
♡ A 4
◇ 10 4 3

West:
♠ A K 5 3
♡ K Q 10 8
◇ K Q 7 6

East:
♠ 10 6 4
♡ J 9 5
◇ A 8 5 2
♣ K 7 4

South:
♠ Q J 8
♡ 7 6 3 2
◇ J 9
♣ Q 8 5 2

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ♣	Pass (1)	Pass
Double (2)	Pass	2 ◇ (3)	Pass
3 ◇ (4)	Pass	3 NT (5)	Pass
4 ◇ (6)	Pass	5 ◇ (7)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) East has 1½ honor-tricks but he has no distributional strength and not adequate spade support. He quite properly refrains from making a free bid.

(2) The correct bid.

(3) East, despite the fact that he has 1½ honor-tricks, still cannot take any strong action. He knows he is showing a ray of hope in his hand by responding to the double with a new suit instead of simply returning to West's first suit.

(4) West does not show his heart suit because he knows that if East held four hearts he would have responded to the takeout double with two hearts rather than two diamonds. The diamond raise portrays West's hand and at the same time keeps the bidding reasonably low in case East should have a near bust.

(5) East of course must take some definite action at this point and with the club suit stopped quite properly chooses the three-notrump call. West showed interest in a game by doubling and then showing diamonds, despite the fact that East passed on the first round.

(6) West, with a 4-4-4-1 distribution, quite properly decides that a notrump contract would be most unsafe. However, having done most of the bidding for the partnership up to this point, West does not feel strong enough to jump to five diamonds.

(7) East has the most strength that he can possibly have in view of his weak early bidding, and he realizes that West must have both honor strength and good distribution for play at diamonds. West has almost single-handed carried the bidding up to four diamonds without knowing that the East hand holds as good as an Ace and a King. The least East can do, particularly since a game was reached on the previous round, is to contract again for game.

Martha's Tips on Sunday Dinner

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

The head-liners in meat offers for this week-end are to be found in lamb and pork. Pork is unusually low in price, fresh Eastern pork selling for 20 cents a pound, and Western for 30 cents a pound for the loins. Combine this popular meat with sauerkraut or apples, to mention a few of the many attractive combinations possible for this choice meat.

Today and tomorrow at many of the markets you will find a special sale of a well-known brand of sausages. This sausage is made in New England and of the best ingredients. In addition to the one pound package of sausage this special offer carries six Hors d'Oeuvres sausages and seven strips of bacon—all for the price of the sausage, 39 cents.

LAMB PRICES

Lamb legs at the chain stores this week end are the loins at 17c. This is all fresh spring lamb, which is coming in excellent condition. At one market that we visited there is a special on lamb flanks at 3c a pound. These have enough meat left on these bones, to make a nourishing lamb stew or even to remove some of the meat and grind to make into lamb patties. While beef is extra fine the prices are higher than on the other two meats we have mentioned and the thrifty housewife will want to take advantage of this fact. Rump is selling at 50c a pound and top of the round is 25c a pound. Poultry of all kinds are on the market in quantity, ranging from the young chickens at 25c to 30c a pound to the large capons at 38c a pound. Native turkeys are a good choice at 33c-40c a pound.

Fish prices remain about the same as they were last week—the price of some of the more common fish being higher than the usual level. Haddock is selling at 15c a pound and cod and flounder at 12c. Blue fish is still in the market for 35c a pound.

TENDER PUMPKINS

There is plenty of rich, tender, meaty pumpkin for the large deep rich pies and tarts of the season. Have you ever topped your pumpkin pie with whipped cream, into which some cream or cottage cheese has been folded? It is a taste thrill which will delight the whole family. Cranberries are selling for 20c a quart this week-end—a rise of a few cents because they are not as plentiful as they have been in other seasons. Potatoes are very fine now and the thrifty housewife will want to stock them at 35c a peck. New Hampshire potatoes are 50c a dozen. These are large, fancy potatoes on the order of the Idaho baking potatoes.

In the apple line there are the Baldwin which are five pounds for 20 cents, McIntosh 50 cents a dozen and the Imperial—a very good cooking apple—four pounds for 25 cents. Grapefruits cost 15 cents apiece, or two for 25 cents.

The green vegetables are string beans, wax beans and peas all 20 cents a pound. Chinese cabbage 8 cents and the other members of this family—brocoli from California, cabbage, cauliflower, are variously priced.

VARIETY RADIO FROM ABOARD SHIP TONIGHT

By N F T

Ocean waves roll over the air waves, at least after a fashion, when a decidedly unusual program puts in from a floating studio (WNAC) as of 10.30 to 11 o'clock tonight. All of which broadcasting merriment takes place aboard the palatial S. S. Ile de France, now docked in New York and making ready for a transatlantic voyage.

Leon Belasco and his orchestra, the colorful Fray and Braggiotti two piano team, Jean Aubert, the glamorous Parisian songstress, who will sing several melodies for which she has become noted, Raphael, maestro of the accordion, in addition to other sparkling personalities of the radio and theatre realm. Nothing cheesy about that array of celebrities, although the whole effort is backed by big rich makers of Roquefort.

MEMORIAL MUSIC

Phil Baker, the buffooning "mike" man who has so much fun with his "Beetle" and "Bottle" sidekicks each Friday night will not be in his usual place this evening. As a mark of respect to the memory of the recent passing of the head of his sponsors business, Phil steps aside in favor of a concert program (WBZ) to occupy the same thirty-minute period. Meaning from 9.30 to 10 p. m.

Those spirited "Red Davis" programs, becoming increasingly popular as they are (WBZ) on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings at 7 30, is carrying some realistic human interest reflections for parents as well as for young men. Tonight finds "Red" returning home after his first meeting with the parents of a new girl friend. Likewise lending a lot to this particular series is the striking contagion with which the theme music registers.

* * *

Myrna Loy and the debonair William Powell are guests of Louella Parsons, the Hollywod film writer (WNAC) when the gala "Hollywood Hotel" airing holds forth tonight on the stroke of 9:30 o'clock.

TIMELY TUNE

Jessica Dragonette, lovely soloing lark of that weekly 8 to 9 musicale due again this evening (WEEI) is singing a romantic new composition called "Let's Forget Tomorrow, Tonight," as written in tango rhythm by Maria Grever, well known Mexican writer of popular tunes from down below the Rio Grande.

* * *

Concerts by the United States Army Band, have been given a new network place (WNAC) beginning with this morning. Captain William J Stannard will wield his baton over his soldier symphonists between 11 30 and 12 noon every Friday in the future.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of England, is being heard across American air channels (WEEI and WNAC) this afternoon from 4 10 until 4 45, while he addresses the Lord Mayor of London's Banquet being attended by notables of the British Empire.

Another striking dramatic story of emotional conflict comes through for the "True Story Court of Human Relations" followers (WNAC) while 8 30 passes into 9 o'clock.

* * *

One of the most impressive and stirring programs ever to be staged by radio in Boston is the forthcoming Veterans' of Foreign Wars observance of Armistice Day on Sunday night next. It is a full hour of World War character, presenting a detailed and kaleidoscopic outline of the events immediately preceding and during the American participation in the European struggle. Musical background, comprising the tunes of those hectic 1917-18 days, is to be blended and woven into the dramatic re-enactment, duly slated to fill the sixty minutes from 10 to 11 P. M.

Students on Food Strike, 'Eat' Milk

Walla Walla, Wash., Nov. 9 (AP)—Now comes the student "hunger" strike. Protesting against increased food prices, Walla Walla College students refused to eat in the college dining hall yesterday noon. Only about 25 ate their evening meal there. The remainder, about 75, subsisted mainly on milk shakes.

You Hear Him on the Radio

Payson Raye . . . Nee Payson Re . . . But who lengthened his names . . . So that people who called him would be able to pronounce it . . . Although as Payson Re . . . The original . . . He had the shortest last name in the world . . . So said Mr. Ripley.

An Everett lad . . . Who studied for the ministry . . . For four days . . . And then quit . . . Because music was his forte . . . And had broken out early on him . . . In Everett . . . When he organized an orchestra there . . . Before going to college.

After he quit the ministerial study . . . He toured with Elizabeth Brice . . . Former Ziegfeld star . . . Do you remember "Row Row, Row?" . . . And then went to Texas . . . Where he nearly froze . . . And shifted to California . . . To get warm . . . And to organize his own band.

The band is still going . . . After playing many leading clubs in the country . . . And has settled down in a Boston hotel . . . Where there is a capacity business . . . Some of it due to the original band arrangements . . . Because Payson will not use a stock arrangement . . . Except in an emergency.

Three nights a week they are on the air . . . But Payson is not satisfied . . . Because his ambition is to drive a fire engine . . . Preferably down Tremont street . . . And to make song records . . . The latter ambition soon to be realized . . . Arrangements having been made.

PAYSON RAYE

Payson has blue eyes . . . Curly hair . . . Dimples . . . And a sense of humor . . . Thinks Shakespeare is very much overrated . . . And likes to direct his band from a piano . . . Because he can play at the same time.

Dear Sir:

This marks the tenth year that I have had my ad in the American and Advertiser every day consecutively. I feel that at this time I owe much of the success of my dancing school to the pulling power of your paper for drawing the right sort of pupils.

Other Boston newspapers have carried my advertising spasmodically, but I have felt that my business would suffer were I to withdraw my ad, even for a single day, from the American.

Very truly yours,

Prof. Ritter

Foreign Loan by Federal Reserve

A foreign loan of $2,247,000 "pledged" appears in statement of Federal Reserve banks, the first transaction of the kind in several years. The New York institution participated in the advance to extent of $801,000.

Just what the transaction involved was not disclosed. It is probable, however, that it represents a loan to a foreign correspondent, preferably a central bank, which is temporarily short of "dollar" exchange.

Short Interest Shows Increase

Total short interest existing as of the opening of business on Oct. 31 as compiled from information secured by the New York Stock Exchange from its members was 882,397 shares, an increase of 12,982 shares over the short interest of 869,415 shares as of Sept. 28.

CLEAR FIELD FOR POLICIES OF 'NEW DEAL'

By B. C. FORBES

What may we now expect business-wise?

The election results are accepted as foreshadowing that President Roosevelt, with Democrats in overwhelming command in both houses of Congress, will be able to secure endorsement of any and all policies he may propose.

B. C. Forbes

This new strengthening of the President's hand makes men of affairs more anxious than ever to receive from him definite assurances concerning the various plans he means to adopt. Admittedly the President cannot lay down a hard-and-fast irrevocable chart.

[illegible] men entrusted with the handling of other people's money, outstanding executives of industrial and other enterprises whose stocks are widely owned, as well as bankers, do not feel warranted in incurring avoidable risks until they are able to gauge the political, the governmental future somewhat more confidently. In other words, fog still encompasses the future; therefore, practical mariners prefer to keep close to shore.

The most imperative need now is for President Roosevelt to brush away that fog as effectively as he possibly can.

The president of one large and notably successful company, who has maintained dividend disbursements all along, after remarking that "Many industrialists are obsessed with doubts as to where industrial events and trends are leading," emphasizes:

"After all, business men are in business for individual profit and not for amusement, or even for social readjustment. I am forced to express lively sympathy for the business man of today who, under present conditions, hesitates to make such forward commitments as would reflect themselves in a revival of the durable goods industries.

It seems to me that the industry can receive some definite information with regard to a few of the basic questions which have thus far been stated only in glittering generalities and with opportunistic treatment, the sooner it will be imbued with the confidence necessary for it wisely to go ahead."

Our national emergency council lacks the all-embracing one recently placed under the wing of Donald R. Richberg—"should include a good two-fisted general sales manager of the United States."

That affirmative suggestion was applauded yesterday when made by Axel Leonard Wenner-Gren before the Advertising Club of New York.

This descendant of vikings has made a notable mark and a notable fortune mainly by developing the science of salesmanship to the nth degree. He is not only one of Sweden's foremost entertainers, but has important business interests in various countries, including the United States, where he is chairman of Electrolux.

BUILDING GROUP LEADS SHARES HIGHER

New York, Nov. 9—Demand for the building and auto equipment shares featured the moderately brisk dealings on the stock market today.

Johns Manville, United States Gypsum and American Radiator continued to give a good account of themselves with gains running to more than a point.

AUTO EQUIPMENTS

Buying of the auto equipments was featured by the rise in Briggs Manufacturing to a new high for the year as traders started to discount the pickup in the motor business over the next few weeks. General Motors, Chrysler and Auburn, though, moved in a rather narrow range to finish slightly higher.

Copper shares were somewhat unsettled by the break of about a point in Granby to a new low for the year.

Railroad shares were again comparatively sluggish with the usual leaders unable to make any headway. Utilities were firm under the leadership of Consolidated Gas.

Mining shares were quiet and tended to be somewhat easier, as Alaska Juneau sold down about half a point.

United States Steel and other industrials were rather quiet and showed no particularly disposition to follow the building and auto shares higher.

MORE CHEERFUL

While a somewhat more cheerful atmosphere seemed to dominate the boardrooms, the lack of any broad public participation in equities trading tended to temper whatever enthusiasm may have been aroused by the mild inflationary interpretations placed on Tuesday's elections.

Little surprise was expressed in the financial district over advices from Washington indicating that the administration estimated the budget for the next fiscal year would total some $7,500,000,000.

Wall Street was highly interested in word from the capital that the President, instead of turning to the left as the result of the election verdict, might seek to revise his economic program along conservative lines. Intimations that the chief executive was against further currency inflation, and hoped that any additional monetary adjustments would be based on stabilization through international agreements, were cheering to banking circles.

Nervousness over the French political situation apparently had worn off considerably, although most observers were still rather confused regarding the outlook for the new Flandin cabinet.

Freight car loadings for the week ended Nov. 3, showed a decline of 11,795 under the previous week, but this was much less than seasonal. Shipments of the U. S. Steel Corporation for October disclosed a drop of 26,344 tons under the previous month, which was about in line with early estimates.

Activity in some of the aviation stocks was attributed to reports of expansion of construction by leading companies and the attention attracted by new transport plane records.

Dollar Higher at Close in London

London, Nov. 9 (AP)—The United States dollar appreciated 1⅜ cents to the pound, closing at 4.99⅛ to the pound, as compared with the overnight rate of 5.00½. The opening was at 4.99¼.

The clarification of the French political situation caused a change on the foreign exchange market, continental interests buying back the currencies which they recently sold, thereby causing a reaction in the British pound and an improvement in other currencies.

The French franc firmed to 75.69 to the pound, as compared with yesterday's close of 76.00.

Foreign Exchanges

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—Foreign exchange irregular; Great Britain in dollars, others in cents.

Great Britain demand, 4.99¼; cables, 4.99⅛ 60-day bills, 4.98¼; France demand, 6.99¼; cables, 6.69¼; Italy demand, 8.55⅜; cables, 8.55¾.

COOK-COOS

by Ted Cook

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Judging from reports, Huey's doing a pretty thorough and workmanlike job with his New Orleans graft investigation.

Only criticism you can make is that it seems a little too much like taking inventory before a change of ownership.

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

Judge W. P. Finks says we owe Geo. Rumsey an apology about what we said in these columns about George, down there at the fine turkey dinner at Cosey Snip's not long ago. Ben McGilvray told us, you remember, that George insisted it was squirrel and not turkey. George says it is quite true that he was a little rusty on just what a turkey was like. But he says Ben needn't be so uppity about it. Old Ben thought it was rabbit!

Says Genevieve, the kitchen cynic: "What annoys me about the European situation is I never can remember which nation is the powder keg and which is the tinder box."

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Dear, Sympathetic Aunt Bella:

My husband is always crabbing about everything. He complains about my cooking, the way I make the beds, the way I dress, the way I bring up the children, etc. I am very unhappy about it all. Do you suppose there's anything I can do?

Worried Wife.

Ans.—Auntie hardly feels qualified to say either "Yes" or "No," Madame. Your husband may be wrong, of course, but he certainly knows you better than I do.

A. ("On the Fence") Bella.

CHEER, BOYS, CHEER

Women, I fear, were not designed
To show great permanence of mind,
Since they can never quite decide
Whether to walk or run or ride,
Or whether they would go or stay,
Or maybe work, or maybe play.
And thus it is one's life is made
Exciting—though a bit delayed.

OPPORTUNITY
NO. 323456.

35, FREE, WHITE, latin-naturalized, soldier, musician. To sing, paint, travel, I like. For card, smoke, drink, I don't care; although live a solitude austere, I am not a monk. I laugh, play. Yet, my heart is aching in want of a kindred-soul companion. Victor.

Police Unification

Need in Crime War

JOSEPH B. KEENAN, assistant United States Attorney-General, visiting Boston recently, presented some live comments on the crime situation.

Many of them are powerful arguments for the passage of a police unification bill.

Obviously such a measure has long been needed to enable the police to cope with the desperate type of criminals on something like an equal footing.

After citing the execution of Federal justice on Dillinger and others of his type, Mr. Keenan warned:

"The brunt of the battle in the war on crime will fall upon local and state police departments.

"Because the major work must be done by local departments, I feel that every police chief in the land should be freed from the domination or intimidation of politicians."

This is the happy state of affairs which a properly-drafted police unification bill would bring about. And that, of course, is why the politicians defeated it at the last legislative session on Beacon Hill.

"There must be an incentive for a career in police departments," Mr. Keenan stated, "and it cannot be there if a chief knows he may be tossed out of his job with the change of a political administration."

A RIGHTLY-WORDED police unification bill would provide exactly what Mr. Keenan suggests.

Do the police departments NEED unification? The assistant attorney-general of the United States declares:

"If we are to cope with criminals, we must have co-operation and co-ordination in our police departments."

There's the answer.

We hope the incoming Legislature will pass a police unification bill. The truth and their duty lies plainly in front of them.

Biennial Sessions

Why Not Let People Decide?

Advocates of biennial sessions of the Massachusetts Legislature are invoking the right of initiative petition in an effort to get a popular vote on the question.

By only two votes in the last session of the Legislature a measure providing for sessions once in two years was defeated.

If the needed 25,000 signatures are secured by Dec. 5, the question will be put before the next session of the Legislature.

President Eliot Wadsworth of the Boston Chamber of Commerce led the ten who originated the original petition.

To change from annual to biennial sessions a Constitutional amendment will be required. A 25 per cent vote of two successive Legislatures must follow. Then there must be a referendum vote by the people.

Why wouldn't it be a good idea to start off by changing the Constitution of the Commonwealth so that ALL this red tape wouldn't be needed?

Why not let the people decide? After all, THEY are the parties governed. Legislators have been bought, the people never!

Tax Trend Is Upward

Check on Extravagance Needed

A Boston Chamber of Commerce survey shows that the trend of taxes in Massachusetts continues upward. Tax rates of 1934 for the 39 cities in the Bay State are the basis of the study.

In 27 the rate was increased over that of 1933, in eight the rate was cut and in four it remained unchanged.

Five of the reductions were for less than a dollar, while three ran from a dollar to three dollars.

Fifteen cities raised the tax rate $3 or more, seven made increases of a dollar to three dollars. Five increases were for less than a dollar.

About 70 per cent of the people of Massachusetts live in these cities. Increased tax burdens are a very serious matter.

All extravagances should be immediately curbed. Let NO city spend more than responsible officials KNOW it can afford.

Be Kind to Animals

Blanket Old Dobbin on Cold Days

The Boston Work-Horse Relief Association issues a timely appeal. It asks horse owners and drivers to provide warm blankets or covers for the faithful steed on coming cold days.

A blanket under the harness as well as over it is suggested. The proper shoeing of horses before the coming of ice and snow is also called for.

Horse owners ought to be able to see that it is for their own benefit as well as that of the horse that the animal is well cared for.

When they just can't see it, a line to the protective association is in order.

Aid Salvation Army

Ammunition for Gospel Soldiers

One more day to aid the Salvation Army.

If ever a cause was worthy, it is the $175,000 drive of the Army to help them alleviate the suffering that is best known by those who have been COLD, those who have been HUNGRY, those who STARVED, even for a kind word.

The drive closes tomorrow. The Salvation Army reports the amount needed to maintain its 24 departments and institutions for the coming year still is below expectations. You can help—and NOW is the time.

Our American Music

We Lead Europe, Says Bodansky

Arthur Bodansky, conductor of the Metropolitan Opera House orchestra, says everything Europe is doing in a musical way is inferior to what America is doing.

We like that. It is good to hear our own culture boosted. Instead of belittled, as is so often the case. Here in Boston particularly we have much to be proud of in a musical way.

Our Symphony, we think, is of the finest. The esplanade concerts many say are unexcelled. Not to mention the quality of the People's Symphony and the ever so popular Pop concerts.

Maharajah Gaekwar Is Visitor to This Country Incognito

The second richest prince of India is in our midst, going about the country incognito and studying us and our ways as he did on his first visit to America twenty-eight years ago.

True, he was here again last year, but that was for only a short, official trip to the Chicago fair. The Maharajah Gaekwar of Baroda, for such he is, has one of the most interesting biographies yet unwritten.

A ploughboy of the eastern world, he was plucked from the farm at the age of thirteen to become the absolute master of a state of eight thousand square miles and a population of two million souls.

Fifty-eight years has he ruled, wisely and well, giving his state a code of liberalism such as Bob LaFollette was to give to Wisconsin and Al Smith to New York when they were governors of these states.

The Maharajah, this time, arrived unheralded on the Europa. It was quite different back in May, 1906, when a large crowd gathered in New York awaiting the Celtic on which he was a passenger.

Great was the disappointment! They had come to see a man in colored silks and turban, with his golden carriage, priceless diamonds, and, perhaps, his elephants.

What they did see was a small, brown man who spoke the most precise English. A peacock potentate come here for the adulation of the four hundred and the bowing and scraping of the fool? Far from it: This was a student and statesman, with no time for the drawing room, but all the time at his disposal for the workshop and the classroom.

He traveled from the Atlantic to the Pacific and when he was leaving, the reporters pressed him, as they did every visitor in those days of the Gibson girl, for his opinion on the American women. And he said:

"After reading and hearing all that I have about the wonderful beauty of the women in this country, I have failed to see it and I have traveled over the greater part of the country. I grant you that she is frank, independent and altogether pleasing, but I have failed to see her beauty."

Back in his state of Baroda, an agricultural district to the northwest of Bombay, the Maharajah set to work Americanizing the system of education. Boys and girls have to go to school there now until they are 14. Child marriages are forbidden and, through the efforts of the Maharanee, an ardent feminist who had accompanied him to America, the emancipation of woman has been worked out.

His wealth is fabulous, and yet he has seemed to regard it as a trust to be wisely administered. In his white stucco palace in Baroda there is a strong room which holds ten million dollars worth of gold, silver and jewels.

The prizes of the collection are The Star of the South, a diamond of 125 carats, a collar of 500 diamonds with a double row of pear-shaped emeralds, a carpet of pearls, a pair of silver cannon and another pair of solid gold.

The Maharajah has packed a full life into his 71 years. He has hobnobbed with royalty from the days of Victoria to those of George V. He has played the games of the West, tennis, golf and polo, while his favorite sport has remained hunting of the tiger.

He is a paradox—a despot who practices and preaches democracy, a humanitarian who can astound smug Occidentals like ourselves when he talks as he did at Chicago last year on our shortcomings in putting our Christian beliefs into practices. Ponder on thoughts such as these:

"Science has united the world, but it is divided socially, economically and politically. Man can weigh and analyze the farthest planet. Can he organize the one he lives on? Religion is needed and will survive, for man is incurably religious. If there were no God, he would invent one. Man needs a simple, strong, sincere and serene faith."

Many more striking passages were in that lesson in philosophy which seemed quite remarkable since it came from an autocrat who has a gold carriage to ride around in. But he is a remarkable man.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

"BE STILL. . . AND KNOW. . ."

Once a year a friend of mine makes a retreat in a Catholic monastery set high on a quiet hill.

My friend is not a Catholic. He does not profess any religion—but he is wise. He has studied himself and his world—and he knows that "making retreat" is a good and necessary thing for all souls, but particularly sick ones.

Elsie Robinson

We're queer, we humans. Endlessly eager and active about the things that serve the flesh. There's nothing we won't do to help or heal our bodies. Yet we utterly neglect those things upon which all our pleasure and power depend—our MINDS and SPIRITS.

IT'S SIMPLE SENSE

That isn't "religious" statement. It's simple sense. How much does the average person know about the operation of his mind or heart? What things help and heal—what things hurt and hinder? And how much effort do we make to find the things we need?

My friend makes retreats not as a religious gesture but to find the things he needs. He seeks that quiet communion exactly as he would seek good milk and water, fresh vegetables, fine bread. He goes apart from the world to feed his soul.

Long ago a great king cried to God. He was a powerful king, wealthy, famous beloved. Yet there were times when his spirit moaned in its hunger, as starving flesh would moan.

Times when he wondered what life was all about, and what he could do—just as you're wondering today—to ease his pain. He made his trouble into a song, and in that song he set God's answer.

"BE STILL"

What was the answer to such need? Something very simple. Just—"BE STILL."

"BE STILL . . . AND KNOW THAT I AM GOD!"

Be still . . . and know. Long ago the wise old church turned that answer into a practical act.

Come away from the world for a little while—for a week or a day even a few hours.

Come from the clamor and confusion. Put aside old grief and hate and fear. Empty your mind of its daily worry. Give yourself a chance to rest and wonder—a chance to be still and know.

"BE STILL—AND KNOW." Open your mind to the truth—clear a place for it to enter. What is the truth? The truth about yourself—your world—your fellow man? You need to know that truth. Your life lacks meaning and power because you don't know it.

But you don't give yourself a chance to know it. You're worrying too much, hurrying too much, theres' too much noise and nagging—you can't possibly learn anything in such a hub-bub.

"Be still." As the earth is still. There is life in earth, growth going on and on. But that growth needs STILLNESS as much as it needs movement and sunshine, rain and wind and water. You, too, need stillness. Stillness to KNOW. Stillness to grow.

"BE STILL . . . AND KNOW." Stop asking and doubting. Stop talking for a while. Stop fighting and rebelling. You are tired and muddied from the madness of it all.

You and your world are sick. Presently you must go on with the struggle. But for a little while give up—be still—

"BE STILL . . . AND KNOW THAT THERE IS GOD—

"And, for a little, rest within His hand."

WHY WIVES TURN GRAY

There are two qualities in which the average man excels a woman—his hospitality and his optimism.

It always makes a woman laugh—a hollow, mirthless laugh—when her husband cordially invites a few people to stay for Sunday dinner or supper without even looking for her signals, and tells her not to "go to any trouble" but just to let them take "pot-luck."

Helen Rowland

"Pot-luck" meaning the opening of innumerable cans, the hurried assembling of manifold makeshifts, the marshalling of fresh linen, the soiling of endless dishes and the ruination of the cook's afternoon off.

"SADDER THAN TEARS"

A hungry Sunday night crowd can eat their way through a week's staples, wreck a woman's nerves and leave the place looking as a speakeasy used to look after a raid.

But you can't quench a man's hospitality—especially after the second cocktail. He is SO cordial!

Besides, a man has a secret conviction that a house runs itself, and that what he used to call "woman's work" is just fun, like going camping or playing golf.

"The smile that is sadder than tears" is that on a woman's face, when she hears her husband urging the departing guests to be sure to "run in again, soon. ANY time!"

It makes her laugh—ha! ha! just like that—when her liege flings her a pair of knickers or sweater with a hole in it and says, "just fix this for me, right away, will you? It won't take you a minute."

Of course, it won't take a minute. It will take a DAY! But optimism is a wonderful thing.

Another time when a woman feels mirthful is when a man rushes in with the cheerful command, "Just throw a few things together into our bags. Don't go to any trouble—it's only over the week-end. We can just about make the train."

Haw! "Any trouble" meaning making a mental list of all the things one simply MUST have and cannot do without when away from home; going through the house with a fine-tooth comb to find things, assembling all his evening clothes, finding the right stockings, shoes and accessories for at least two costumes and finally getting everything into the grips with the right things on top.

Oh yes, it makes a woman just CHOKE with laughter when a man tells her how "simple" it is to do these little things and wonders why she "makes such a fuss about it."

Not all husbands are so naive, of course, especially after a few years of marriage. A man gets home-broken or marriage-broken or something—but it takes a lot to kill his optimism. And some wives live the life of a fireman from the altar to the grave.

Portrait of a Lady Who Writes

By SYLVIA GRACE

Katharine Brush, young, gentle, modest, has achieved what everbody knows means the top of the writing business, her name in huge letters on the cover of COSMOPOLITAN, THE important fiction magazine of the United States, her story, "Don't Ever Leave Me," beautifully illustrated, featured inside. It is a success as complete as that of a prima donna at the Metropolitan, it is her name in electric lights on the principal literary avenue of the nation.

She sits behind a half circle desk in a round room high above New York. By her hand are four yellow pencils, sharpened to a fine point. In ordered heaps about her lie copy paper, yellow, without any mark, more paper covered with a fine tracing of words, and more typewritten. The room is full of silence, thick walls shut out the world.

"NOW'S THE NOW," SAYS KATHARINE BRUSH. "YOU HAVE TO DO IT NOW."

"I WISH YOU HAD TOLD ME ABOUT THE PHOTOGRAPHER. I WOULD HAVE HAD MY HAIR DONE."

Do you remember the beautiful Lady of Shalott in Tennyson's poem? She sat alone in a tower, weaving "a magic web with colors gay." Moving through a mirror that hung before her were those that passed on the highway below and those that voyaged on the river, the color and pageant of simple folk, of pages and abbots and knights in flashing armor, of funeral processions moving slowly in the dark with plumes and lights, of young lovers yearning toward each other. These sights the Lady of Shalott wove into her web.

A NEW NOVEL

And Katharine Brush, in the silence of her tower, has woven the amazing tapestry of her new novel, "Don't Ever Leave Me."

It is a story of youth, of boys and girls dancing in a country club on a rainy night, of bright dresses, passionate music, love, and the anxious care of fathers and mothers, of a boy who would not stay at the party, but went to a low-down dance hall where the factory workers made merry. It is a story of "sophisticates," those fascinating people who, relieved from the necessity of making a living or doing the wash, turn the energy of their well-fed bodies into excitement and mischief and beauty.

"It is simply the story of a boy who got into trouble," Miss Brush said. "It has taken me nearly two years to write. I have a whole drawer full of manuscript, written for it and discarded. I wanted it to be as good as I could possibly make it. I have tried very hard."

She believes in slavery, for herself, and anybody who wants to write should consider her program. She gets up early, works until three in the afternoon, and often after dinner until two or three in the morning.

She writes and rewrites, dulling the four fine-pointed pencils over and over on pieces of copy paper. When she has written down an idea, she copies it on the typewriter. "I can't compose on the typewriter," she says, "which is absurd, since typing is perfectly easy for me. But you can't tell in longhand how a thing is going to look, so I type it out right away."

There is no time for Katharine Brush but the present. "I tell my brother if he is going to write he must do it now. The best training for a writer is a newspaper job, and he's got that. But he ought to write in the evenings. That is the only trouble with newspapers. You stay on them too long, and put off writing. You can't put it off. You have to do it now. Now's the now, right here."

She began to work on a Boston newspaper when she was fifteen. Her father, a teacher at Yale, was amused at her eagerness to conquer the world, and arranged a Summer job for her with a friend of his on the paper. She was to take a business course after that, and go to Wellesley, where her mother had been. She never got there.

That Boston paper had an eagle in a nice little canary's cage. "They wouldn't let me report," Katharine Brush said, still indignant. "They treated me like a child, and gave me horrid clerical jobs to do. I told them I hadn't come there for that. I told them I wanted to write stories. I made such a fuss that finally they let me be assistant to the dramatic critic and see the lesser plays. I was very solemn and important about it, and criticized loftily."

ACHIEVED THE DREAM

As she talked, the photographer used his "Candid Camera." She had not expected a photographer, and said what every girl says: "I wish you had told me, I would have had my hair done."

She has achieved the dream of every writer. She has a son, 12 years old, a husband who watches over her, and when he thinks she needs exercise, forces her to play ping pong.

Her success is no accident, but the result of determination. She need not work so hard, she might have worked when she felt like it or not at all, excusing herself with the thousand excuses that embroider most failures. But she is not that kind of person. "Now's now," she says, and works.

SITTING ON HER DESK, LOOKING BEAUTIFUL.

If you want to write read Katharine Brush's story, "Don't Ever Leave Me," in December Cosmopolitan. Analyze it, study the words she uses, watch the growth of suspense. But remember that she has worked and worked and worked, kept on trying when she was tired, driven her fingers over the paper when it was not fun, put all her strength and mind and intelligence into writing well.

The prize of success is always there for anyone willing to earn it.
